Nixon, Brezhnev To Sign Treaty

MOSCOW (UPI) —President Nixon and Soviet leaders reached agreement today on a historic treaty limiting nuclear arms.

The treaty was to be signed at 11 p.m. Moscow time (4 p.m. EDT) at the Kremlin following an all-American dinner Nixon is giving his hosts.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon would sign for the United States, and diplomats told UPI Communist Party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev probably would sign for the Soviet Union.

The agreement capped 2½ years of negotiations at the strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) in Helsinki and Vienna and provided a crowning achievement for Nixon's summit talks in Moscow.

The treaty covers both offensive and defensive missiles. It will limit antiballistic missiles (ABM), ban building more launching silos for intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBM), freeze the number of ICBMs at the present figure, and allow no new construction of missile-launching submarines.

The United States now has 1,054 land-based ICBMs; 41 missile-carrying submarines and two ABM sites under construction. The Soviet Union has an estimated 1,550 ICBMs; 25 missile-carrying subs; and the only operational ABM in the world.

Even as the final wording was being worked out, the two nations reached agreement on yet another accord, this one to set up a Soviet-American commission to develop trade and business economic relations.

The trade agreement, less than Nixon had hoped for, was preceded during the week-long talks by the signing of five other pacts, covering joint efforts on disease, pollution, space, science and "rules of the sea."

Ziegler said that Nixon and the ruling Soviet troika — Brezhnev, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and President Nikolai V. Podgorny —met in the Kremlin for two hours this afternoon.

"They discussed international problems and completed the final agreement on strategic arms limitation," Ziegler said.

The two chief arms negotiators, U.S. ambassador Gerard C. Smith and Soviet First Deputy Foreign Minister Vladimir S. Semenov, flew together in a U.S. air transport plane from Helsinki to Moscow for the ceremony.

Shortly after agreement came, Nixon and Brezhnev themselves met in the Kremlin for the President's eighth summit session in five days. Soviet and U.S. sources said the two went on to discuss other issues. But Nixon's main goal of his mission to Moscow had been reached in the arms pact.

The aides negotiated under terms laid down by the leaders of the two superpowers at a 40-foot-long conference table in the Kremlin.

"It looks like we have virtually all matters of principle dealt with," one U.S. official said.

The conferees delayed signing the agreement and issuing a formal announcement while a joint communique was prepared, sources said. American sources described the task of writing the communique as difficult but said the task could be completed today.

Following their arms agreement, the conferees went on to other topics, summit sources said, ranging over other crucial issues, presumably including Vietnam.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said there was a possibility that accord on the remaining issue before the summit —increased U.S.-Soviet trade —could be reached today.

But officials of both countries said they expected the trade arrangement to be a general statement falling far short of any hard and fast agreement. A Soviet source said the delegations probably would issue a "statement of intent" laying down the guidelines for expanded commerce.

A final pact on trade matters has been snarled by old disagreements about Soviet war debts and new conflicts on the interest rate of U.S. export-import loans.

The Nixon-Brezhnev summit has galloped along at a treaty-or-two-a-day clip and generated a heady spirit of popping champagne corks and confident grins.

Through Thursday, the Americans and Russians signed five pacts. They covered environmental control, public health cooperation, joint manned space flight, scientific exchange and prevention of incidents at sea.

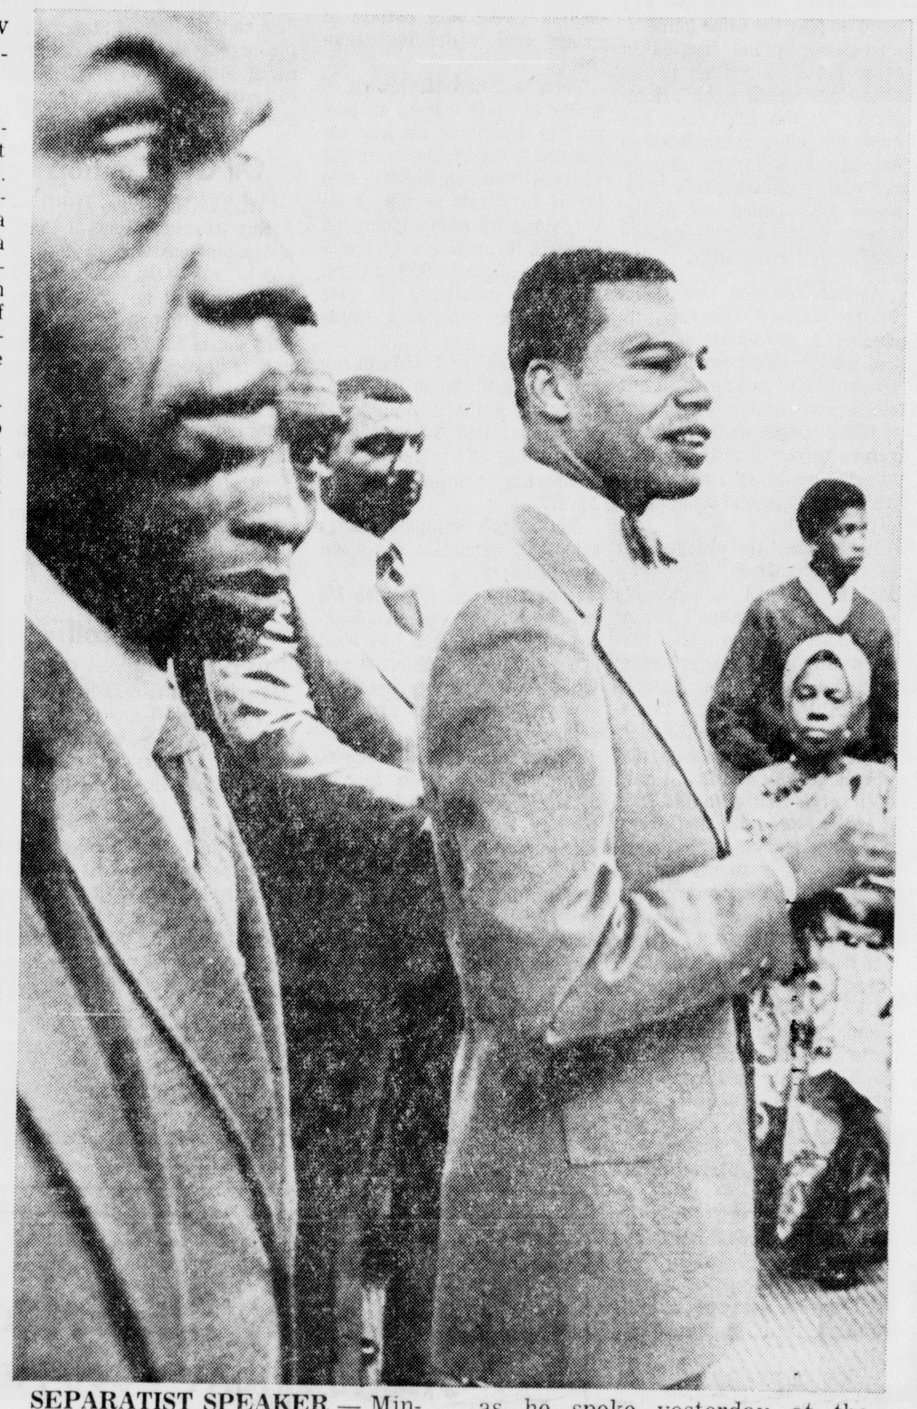

Conference sources said the final hitches on the arms pact had been more of a technical nature than of principle.

Diplomats said it was significant the final strategic arms talks were carried out in Moscow —between the two top leaders, rather than in Helsinki where arms negotiators have been meeting.

American and Soviet officials said the arms pact is the only nuclear age agreement actually placing a limit on any portion of the awesome weapons the superpowers have in their arsenals.

They said they hoped it would mark the beginning of even more progress toward eliminating the possibility of World War III and a nuclear holocaust.

Huge Corte Madera Shop Center To Rise

Approved By Council— Work To Begin In Month

By LARRY MOWELL

A major regional shopping center — subject of a tug-of-war between Corte Madera and Larkspur and a source of concern as to its effect on downtown San Rafael — will be located in Corte Madera, it was disclosed last night.

Developer Ernest W. Hahn at a special meeting of the Corte Madera Town Council announced that ground preparation for the multimillion-dollar project will begin within 30 days.

Hahn also announced that Macy's will place a store the size of Northgate's Emporium in the proposed center directly across Highway 101 from the existing Corte Madera Shopping Center.

Furthermore, Hahn said he is pursuing "advanced negotiations" with J. C. Penney Co., now located in the Corte Madera Center and in downtown San Rafael, and an unnamed department store chain with higher priced lines than either of the others.

As to effect of the announcement on Macy's present store in San Rafael, John Eagen, senior vice president of Macy's California, told the Independent-Journal today that "there is no plan to close the San Rafael store." And he noted that the planned new center wouldn't open for two-and-a-half years. Eagen said Macy's has a long-term lease on its San Rafael building, but was uncertain of the precise duration.

Penney's officials could not be reached for comments on what the development will mean to its present outlets in Marin.

A San Rafael merchant, meanwhile, believed the center would have substantial impact on downtown business and decried what he considered to be the apathy of fellow businessmen on Fourth Street.

"With this new Sears operation (at Northgate) and the new center in Corte Madera, it's going to affect the stores in downtown San Rafael unless we do something about it," said Walter Zurcher, owner of the San Rafael Toy Shop and chairman of the downtown merchants committee of the chamber of commerce.

Hahn stressed the fashionable aspects of the 115 to 120 stores he plans to locate on what is now 75 acres of low marshy land between the Tamalpais Drive and Lucky Drive interchanges of Highway 101.

However, the council and citizens present seemed more impressed by the financial aspect of the center, which would almost double town revenue.

The cramped crowd of about 70 persons in the small council chamber asked Hahn about everything from taxes and drainage to what he will do with the bay view, but none sounded opposition.

"This is the first time I can remeber that everyone is lukewarm to enthusiastic," Mayor Holmes S. Norville said.

The council agreed almost

Missiles Break Up Red Push

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. helicopters firing guided electronic missiles broke up a Communist assault on Kontum today, but other North Vietnamese infiltrated into the forward command post of the South Vietnamese 22nd Infantry Division on the northern edge of the city.

While South Vietnamese defenders battled 500 infiltrators who occupied houses and a school on the southern edge of Kontum another group of sappers seized several buildings in the division compound on the north side and touched off one of the more bizarre battles of the war.

A machinegun crew climbed a water tower in the South Vietnamese compound and sprayed machinegun bullets at the defenders below. South Vietnamese tanks shelled the tower—and missed. Finally a U.S. helicopter flew in, knocked over the tower with another missile and killed the four machinegunners.

U.S. spokesmen said the American missile-helicopters knocked out at least 10 of the 13 tanks destroyed at Kontum today, helping the South Vietnamese beat back two assaults on the Kontum airport.

The U.S. command reported a third day of massive air attacks against Haiphong and the North Vietnamese launched new attacks along the defense line above Hue and brought in a force of tanks which were menacing the 2,000-man U.S. base at Phu Bai, 10 miles south of Hue.

A spokesman said the tank force was spotted only five miles from the lightly guarded eastern flank of Phu Bai and that although there was a B52 strike in the area the base was still under threat.

On the My Chanh River defense line 22 miles north of Hue a force of 1,000 North Vietnamese using tanks launched another major assault along Highway 1 today but were beaten back by U.S. air power and South Vietnamese Marines using hand grenades in fighting that swept to within 30 yards of the South Vietnamese lines. The Marines reported killing 200 of the attackers.

The battle for Kontum was far from over but the missile firing American helicopters were making it easier for the defenders. The helicopters were using missiles known as "TOWS" for Tube-Launched, Optically Tracked Wire-guided missiles. They first began using them seven weeks ago when

THE JOYS OF VICTORY TURN SLIGHTLY SOUR

It is no fun getting a traffic ticket, but beating that ticket is far more rewarding In fact, it is even worth a celebration, especially when the charges are speeding, reckless driving and obstructing an officer.

A couple of shouts, a whoop for joy, a little clapping and back slapping and maybe a Bronx cheer for the arresting officer all seem appropriate in the pleasure of the moment.

But Judge David R. Baty of Marin Municipal Court didn't see it that way yesterday. Minutes after clearing John Eliason Loeber, 18, of San Jose of the three charges, he sent the youth and two friends to jail for contempt for whooping it up outside his courtroom.

Loeber was freed later in the day when the judge learned he hadn't really been noisy, but his two friends, Richard Scott Susman and Geoffrey Maurice Roberts, both 18 and from San Rafael, were left in jail to serve a one-day sentence.

Loeber had been charged with racing his motorcycle through a 25-mile-an-hour zone at 65 miles an hour April 17 on Las Raposas Road in Terra Linda and fleeing when a sheriff's deputy tried to cite him.

Blacks Differ On How To Emerge As Force

By JEFF GREER

One of California's top black educators declared today that all black educators must teach far outside classroom walls —to whites, to divergent groups within the black society and to other minorities.

Vernon Broussard, chief of the bureau of program development in the state Department of Education, summed up much of what had been said by many others in the three-day national conference on "Emerging Trends in the Education of Black Students" at the Holiday Inn in San Rafael.

In a speech prepared for his luncheon address today, Broussard cautioned both against black separatist movements, and against the old "melting pot" theory which would turn blacks, Indians, Latin Americans and other minorities into "all-American kids next door."

Broussard's views differed sharply with those of Minister Louis Farrakhan of the University of Islam in Harlem. The Black Muslim stole the limelight and much of the audience from most of the other speakers at yesterday's conference session, as an overflow crowd listened to him call for blacks to take control of all schools where blacks are taught, roundly condemn Women's Lib movements and fiercely scold black teachers for failing to set high moral examples for black children.

Dr. Nathan Hare of Sausalito, former director of black studies at San Francisco State College and now publisher of the Black Scholar magazine, also condemned "white education," and called for black youth to "jive the white system" until black educational needs are met.

Dr. Charles Hurst, president of the Malcolm X College in Chicago, urged his fellow educators to pressure both major political parties into action on minority education and social ills. "We can't afford to be a one-party people. . .be whatever party you want. . .but remember the black agenda above all," he urged.

Hurst, who transformed a failing technical school into one of the most active black colleges in the Uited States, said he was puzzled and alarmed by the relative ease nowadays of obtaining funds for black education projects. "I have to spend a lot of money to hire people to check on how the money is spent" so there will not be political accusations of inefficiency or even corruption later, he complained.

Broussard's speech today dwelt at length on the issues of integration and separatism. While many of the other speak-

A Secret Committee Formed In Mill Valley

Unbeknownst to her fellow councilmen and the public, Mill Valley Mayor Jean S. Barnard has formed a secret committee to deal with employee grievances.

The Independent-Journal learned yesterday the three-man committee already has met with library employees and has drafted a recommendation for solving previously undisclosed differences.

News of Mrs. Barnard's unilateral appointment of the mediation committee bought expressions of surprise and dismay from other councilmen who said the mayor's action violates standing policy.

Councilman Gerald J. Hood, who earlier this month was assured by Mayor Barnard that all committee appointments would be reviewed by the full council, said today he will seek a full explanation.

"Creation of the committee came as news to me," said Hood. "We had discussed employee grievancesin closed session (May 8) but didn't form any committee."

Hood and Councilmen Robert E. Capron and Edward J. Boessenecker said they had been asked by Mayor Barnard in April to submit names for such a committee but did not know the matter had gone as far as appointment.

"I can say categorically that the negotiating committee has not been appointed by the council," Boessenecker said.

"If a negotiation team was appointed by one or two councilmen without the knowledge or consent of the other councilmen," said Capron, "that procedure would not be compatible with the procedure set up . . ."

Capron said he was refering to a "memorandum of understanding" between the city council and employees' union which says, in part, "any grievance which is not resolved . . . may be appealed in writing . . to a (grievance) board to be appointed by the city council."

The memorandum of understanding was approved by the city council in 1970 at the conclusion of a 33-day strike by city employees. It established a four-step grievance procedure

Belfast Bomb In Car Kills Woman

BELFAST (UPI)—A bomb exploded without warning in a car parked on a busy street in downtown Belfast today and police said one woman was killed and 37 other persons wounded, some seriously.

Within an hour another explosion wrecked the tennis club building at Queen's University and one person suffered minor cuts and bruises, police said.

The bombings shattered a two-day comparative lull in violence-torn Northern Ireland.

Bay Smog Board Clamps Down On Building: Permits Required

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Bay Area smog officials, backed into a corner by the federal government, yesterday adopted a radical regulation to start controlling major construction throughout the region.

Bay Area Air Pollution Control District directors reluctantly voted 12-1 to adopt and impose as of July 1 an unparalleled requirement that major new projects get a permit from the district before starting construction.

The crux of the regulation is that the district must reject a permit whenever it finds that the project would add enough air pollution so that federal air quality standards would be violated. In such cases, the project would be banned even if it in itself did not exceed emissions permitted individual operators.

The regulation, as required by the EPA, applies the permit system to new or expanded operations emitting at least 100 tons of any single pollutant a year — a low enough limit that it embraces hundreds of operations, primarily industrial.

The EPA cautioned that the permit system must be extended to smaller polluters if the 100-ton limit fails to clean up the region's air so that it meets federal air quality standards.

The district had hoped to make the portion requiring rejection in cases violating federal standards effective in four years so the staff could develop data to justify such prohibitions, but the federal Environmental Protection Agency demanded that the entire regulation be effective immediately. The agency declared it would impose its own regulation unless the district did so before the end of this month.

A four-year exemption was granted in the regulation to about 100 classes of air-polluting activities, including single-family dwellings, multiple-fam-

Suit Filed To Stop Meadowsweet Plan

By ERIK M. INGRAM

A group of Corte Madera residents, angered by town council approval of a massive housing development, yesterday filed suit to stop the project, and today acknowledged they are working to recall several councilmen.

Larry P. Weingarth, a plaintiff in the suit to halt the Meadowsweet Station Project, told the Independent-Journal a group of 50 to 60 residents is poised to begin spade work for the recall.

"There's broad sentinment to work for a recall," Weingarth said. "We would like not to do it, but if the town council continues to act in an arrogant manner serving the developers' interests instead of the citizens', we will."

As reported yesterday, three town councilmen have been named as possible targets for a recall because of their support for the 528-unit townhouse development: Mayor Holmes S. Norville, Edward W. Colthurst and Harold B. Wagstaff, each of whom has two years left to serve.

Under state law, Robert P. Simmons, who also voted for the project last week, could not be recalled since he was just reelected. (His reelection remains in doubt, however, with challenger Herber C. Leney

Lawyer Dies In Court Shooting

OROVILLE, Calif. (UPI)—A family feud erupted into a courtroom shooting yesterday, leaving an attorney dead and a judge and woman spectator wounded.

Perry Farmer, 55, an Oroville attorney, was shot in the head from six inches away by a gunman sitting behind the counsel table.

Police arrested Minyard Owen Rutherford, 57, who was involved in the civil suit and held him for investigation of murder and two counts of attempted murder.

Superior Court Judge Jean Morony was nicked in the right arm when the suspect tried to escape. Morony said he stepped out of a door in an adjacent jury room after hearing shots and was hit. Karolyn Garrick also was wounded.

Superior Court Judge Lucian Vandegrift was presiding in the case involving a dispute between the Garrick and Rutherford families when witnesses said the suspect shot Farmer with a .38-caliber revolver and continued firing as he fled the courtroom. The gunman was captured by sheriff's deputies in the hallway.

The shooting occurred about 4 p.m.

Mrs. Garrick was reported in satisfactory condition from a bullet that broke her right arm and lodged in her chest.

District Attorney Kenneth Leach put a gag rule on all witnesses in the case, ordering them not to talk while an investigation of the incident was under way.

Rutherford, the suspect, is a postal worker with a rural mail route. The dead man was a well known Oroville lawyer who handled many criminal cases. He died enroute to a hospital in nearby Chico.

It was the second trial in a dispute between Rutherford and Mrs. Garrick. Farmer had represented Mrs. Garrick in the first case when Rutherford filed a suit against her over ownership of property they reportedly demolished together.

A $1,200 judgment went against Rutherford in the first trial and Mrs. Garrick brought an action against him, claiming he was responsible for demolishing equipment being wrongfully attached.

Historic Talks Set In Germany

BERLIN (UPI)—East and West Germany said today ttey have agreed to hold talks on the normalization of relations between the two parts of the divided nation.

They said the historic talks, designed to end cold war disputes, would begin after the Big Four foreign ministers sign the four power agreement on Berlin in the city June 3.

The announcement was made at a ceremony on the signing of an East-West German transport treaty—the first such state treaty between the two rival states—in the East German Cabinet Office Building in East Berlin.

East Germany at the ceremony repeated its decision to allow East Germans to visit the West for the first time since the Berlin Wall was built 11 years ago.

It said East Germans would be allowed out "on urgent family business" — family deaths, births, sickness, weddings and similar family matters. It also said West Germans would be allowed to make more visits to East Germany.

The transport agreement was signed by the two state secretaries who negotiated it— Egon Bahr of West Germany and Michael Koh of East Germany.

Wallace Undergoes Minor Surgery To Relieve Pain

SILVER SPRING, Md. (UPI) —Gov. George C. Wallace has shown "immediate improvement and a marked reduction in abdominal pain" following minor surgery to relieve accumulation of pus in two areas, hospital authorities report.

Doctors, hoping to speed Wallace's recovery, made two incisions to drain infections yesterday, the 10th day since he was gunned down by a would-be assassin while campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination at a nearby shopping center.

Billy Joe Camp, Wallace's press secretary, said Wallace fed and bathed himself for the first time Thursday since the shooting.

Camp also said a trapeze bar was installed over the governor's bed for physical therapy. He said Wallace can pull himself off the bed by using the bar.

Despite rising spirits and relief from abdominal pain, doctors treating Wallace said "the remainder of the governor's condition continues stable" and that the "neurological condition of the power extremities remains unchanged." Wallace has been paralyzed from the waist down by a bullet lodged against his spine.

Wallace underwent a long operation the day of the shooting. A second operation is expected to be performed within two weeks at nearby Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington or at the University of Alabama Medical Center in Birmingham.

Humphrey Abandons 'Nice Guy' Stance

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A reluctant Hubert H. Humphrey, fighting to survive as a contender for the Democratic presidential nomination, has shed his "nice guy" image to slug it out with old friend George S. McGovern in the California primary.

McGovern indicated he was ready to play the same game.

Pressed by his frustrated campaign aides and admittedly facing an "uphill fight," Humphrey for the first time has made his fellow South Dakotan the campaign target, sharply criticizing McGovern's proposed $32.4 billion cut in the defense budget over three years and his welfare reforms.

At two luncheon sessions in Orange County Thursday, including a $30-a-plate hot dog and potato salad fund raiser, Humphrey warned that McGovern's drastic cuts in the military budget would be "dangerous to our national self interest," would create massive unemployment, and could "lead to disaster."

He repeated the charge later in San Francisco. Humphrey said he did not consider his attacks on McGovern's record "personal." But he added that the possibility he was providing ammunition for the Republicans to use against the Democratic nominee in the fall election "is a risk and one that weighs heavily on me ... I have been very sensitive to this."

At the same time, McGovern, also campaigning in the heavily-populated southern part of the state, told a news conference in San Diego that it was "the most outrageous nonsense and demonstration of gall that I think I've seen" for Humphrey to claim their records on the Vietnam war are identical.

He charged that Humphrey, from the time he became vice president in 1965 until the latter part of his 1968 presidential campaign, was a supporter of the Johnson administration's war policies.

"If I wanted to really go on the offensive I could read statements of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey until the end of June on his support for our military involvement in Southeast Asia."

Their increasingly acrimonious exchanges increased interest in the three nationally televised debates which will be held before the June 6 primary, in which 271 delegate votes are at stake. The first debate is Sunday.

Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty, also on the ballot as a presidential candidate, accused both Humphrey and McGovern of trying to "buy the votes of the people of California by deception" with huge outlays of money and misleading statements.

Yorty accused McGovern of trying to "pull a hoax on people" in describing his long opposition to the Vietnam war and charged that Humphrey was trying to attract aerospace labor votes by campaigning on his vote to provide a $200 million loan to the Lockheed Corp. but never mentioned his vote against the supersonic transport (SST).

McGovern and Humphrey both disputed claims by Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown, Jr., that they each had spent about $1.5 million for the California campaigns since April 7.

McGovern's campaign aides said their candidate has spent about $950,000.

Humphrey told newsmen his expenditures were around $500,000 (aides said less has been spent so far) in California and that Brown was referring to all expenses in primary and non-primary states so far.

Meanwhile, in San Francisco, former Minnesota Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy said he is available for two cabinet posts — secretary of state or secretary of the treasury.

He commented Thursday that those were the only two posts where "you can take your own policy with you."

He told a news conference that he did not feel the assassination attempt on Alabama Gov. George Wallace would bring him a large sympathy vote. McCarthy suggested Wallace will get the same number of votes as he would have in good health.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Agnew On Vietnam

NEW YORK (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, accepting an award as father of the year, described South Vietnam yesterday as a weak and helpless nation "under attack by a criminal."

Speaking to about 1,000 persons at the National Fathers Day Committee luncheon, Agnew said the United States, "at the urgent plea of the country under attack," was in Vietnam to assist "the victims of aggression."

On Gun Controls

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — Acting Attorney General Richard Kleindienst favors legislation to outlaw the sale of cheap handguns, but he said yesterday any attempt to legislate guns out of the hands of criminals is "ridiculous."

"Trying to take guns away from persons who want to commit criminal acts is ridiculous," Kleindienst said.

He said there were more than 900,000 illegally owned guns in New York, although that state has a gun control law.

A GM Recall

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. is recalling about 22,000 current-model Buicks and Oldsmobiles with possible steering linkage defects which could make it impossible to steer.

GM said that while there have been no reports of this actually happening, it would be "most apt to occur during low speed cornering or in parking type maneuvers where steering system loads are the highest."

The problem stems from a poorly fitted steering arm which is part of the linkage connecting the front wheels with the steering system, the company said in announcing the recall yesterday.

Tentative Dates

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Federal and county prosecutors set tentative trial dates yesterday for Arthur Herman Bremer, 21, accused of the shooting of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

Prince Georges County States Attorney Arthur Marshall set a "very tentative" trial date of July 12. Bremer is accused of 24 violations of Maryland law, including four charges of assault with intent to murder in the May 15 attempted assassination at Laurel, Md. Bremer's arraignment on the charges may take place in a week, Marshall said.

The trial on four federal charges, including violating Wallace's rights as a presidential candidate and wounding a Secret Service officer, may not take place until September.

A Sea Tragedy

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (UPI) — An explosion aboard a cargo ship killed one crewman and blew two others into gale-whipped seas off the coast of Virginia today, the Coast Guard reported.

The blast occurred about midnight and Coast Guard aircraft, lighting the tossing seas with flares, searched throughout the night for the missing crewmen. No trace of them was found, but an intensified search began at the first light of dawn.

It was the second ship explosion in as many days along the eastern seaboard. Yesterday an engine room explosion and fire forced the 100 persons aboard the cargo vessel Oriental Warrior to abandon the ship off Daytona Beach, Fla.

Return To Work In Water Works Strike

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Striking California Water Project workers agreed early today to return to work while negotiations continue on their demands for higher pay.

The State Water Resources Department announced that Water Resources Director William R. Gianelli and Walter Taylor, general manager of the California State Employes Association, signed an agreement at 3:40 a.m. under which the workers would go back to work immediately.

The agreement stated that the employes who walked off the job Monday shall return to work "under normal conditions except for loss of pay during the period of absence without punitive action for their absence without leave during the strike ..."

Gianelli said he was "very pleased that the men are coming back to work."

CSEA, which sanctioned the strike against the massive $2.8 billion project, had reported that some 500 workers voted throughout the state Thursday night on whether to accept a 12.5 per cent increase for most employees.

The workers walked off their jobs demanding wage hikes ranging from 21 to 26 per cent.

CSEA leaders recommended that the workers accept what they said was a promise by Gov. Ronald Reagan to get them the 12.5 per cent increases.

The CSEA strike sanctions committee voted Thursday night to end the walkout.

CSEA General Manager Walter W. Taylor said the workers were voting on a "written offer of pay increases up to 12.5 per cent."

But it was unclear whether there was an "offer" made by the state.

Taylor said the workers were interpreting a memorandum issued Thursday by state officials and recent statements by Reagan as a "commitment" of 12.5 per cent increases.

State Water Resources Director William Gianelli issued the memorandum to all state employes to give them "a factual account of the strike.

Gianelli, water project chief, said "while no offer has been made" a recommendation for the 12.5 per cent wage hikes by the staff of the state Personnel Board "should be taken seriously."

Earlier this week Reagan urged the workers to accept the personnel board's staff recommendation. But Edwin Gray, the governor's press secretary, later said the proposal was not an "offer" in the contractual sense "because there is no legal authority for the state to contract with employe associations."

During the strike, CSEA officials have contended the walkout shut down the 685-mile network of tunnels, canals and aqueducts that transports surplus Northern California water to the south.

Von Braun Is Leaving Agency

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Dr. Wernher von Braun, German-born rocket expert who directed development of the rocket that sent Americans to the moon, retired from the space agency today.

An announcement of his retirement issued by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said that von Braun would join Fairchild Industries as corporate vice president for engineering and development, effective July 1.

Von Braun was serving as deputy associate administrator at the time of his resignation. Before that, he was director of the Marshall Space Flight Center in Alabama for 10 years, heading the team that developed the world's most powerful rocket, the Saturn V which propelled Apollo's moon-landing missions.

Dr. James C. Fletcher, NASA administrator, said "all of us in NASA will miss the daily stimulation of his presence, but we are confident that we will continue to have the benefit of his inspiration and counsel in the continuing exploration and use of space."

Von Braun, 60, who was instrumental in developing the V2 bombs that Germany launched against England during World War II, said he was leaving "with a deep feeling of gratitude for the wonderful and unique opportunities the agency has given me during the last 12 years."

He added: "I am leaving with the knowledge that NASA has enough well thought out plans to keep it moving ahead for many years to come, even though some of these may have to be deferred because of budget constraints."

His departure comes just a few months before the final Apollo moon-landing mission and at a time when the space agency faces increasing pressure to cut its spending plans.

In the closing months of ths war, von Braun led a group of scientists from Germany's Peenemuende rocket center, to allied forces in the west and came to the United States, establishing the nation's first concerted missile program at White Sands, N.M.

Welfare Rolls 'Going Down'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke says preliminary figures indicate California welfare rolls are "back on the downward track" after two straight months of increases.

Reinecke told a news conference Thursday there were 2,149,300 persons on welfare in California last month, down 11,700 from March. He said welfare rolls declined for 10 straight months until the increases in February and March.

If the preliminary figures prove out, Reinecke said, "they will show that we are back on the downward track, that welfare reform is continuing to work better than expected."

No-Fault Insurance Bill Goes To Senate

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The fate of no-fault automobile insurance, condemned by some as a "boondoggle" rests in the hands of the Senate today with Assembly passage of a plan guaranteeing a 15 per cent reduction in premiums.

The bill by Assemblyman Jack R. Fenton, D-Montebello, cleared the lower house Thursday with bipartisan support and was sent to the Senate on a 47-19 vote.

Fenton declared the present system of auto insurance is "woefully inadequate," returning only 45 per cent of the premium dollar in benefits to drivers. He said his modified no-fault proposal would boost that amount to 65 per cent.

The bill ran into bitter opposition from Assembly John J. Miller, D-Berkeley, an attorney, who assailed "the stupidity of this so-called legislation."

"This is absolutely the biggest boondoggle I have seen in this legislature in the past six years," he declared.

Insurance companies stand to gain "a great deal" under the bill, Miller said, by no longer having to defend themselves or the persons they insure in court.

Fenton's measure is expected to be sent to the Senate Judiciary Committee, which killed a similar proposal by him last year.

One important change has occurred since then. Gov. Ronald Reagan has endorsed the concept of no-fault insurance. While he has not backed any one bill, many of the features he considers desirable are embodied in a measure by Sen. Alfred Song, D-Monterey Park, chairman of the Judiciary Committee.

Several other no-fault proposals are also before the committee.

Basically Fenton's bill would require most motorists to purchase minimum insurance coverage. The driver's insurance company would be required to pay damages up to $10,000 regardless of who was at fault in an accident.

If medical damages exceeded $1,000, the motorist could sue for additional compensation. The driver could also go to court if the accident resulted in loss of a body member, serious or permanent disfigurement or impairment of a bodily function.

As originally proposed it would not have guaranteed a premium reduction, but Assemblyman John Burton, D-San Francisco, won Assembly approval earlier this week of an amendment requiring a 15 per cent decrease in premiums by 1975.

The California and American Trial Lawyers Associations have vehemently opposed the no-fault proposals along with at least one insurance company.

In their testimony on Fenton's bill prior to approval of the Burton amendment, they contended it would mean a premium increase for drivers.

Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond, a lawyer like Miller, declared that if the Burton amendment proved financially unfeasible to insurance companies, they would return to the legislature seeking its removal.

Declaring that principle of "fault" is well-established in law, Knox warned that if it is taken away the legislature would be telling persons "no matter what you do we'll pay for it."

The $10,000 in benefits provided by Fenton's bill include payment of medical expense and wage losses of up to $175 a week.

Funeral and burial expenses up to $1,250 would also be provided in addition to $15 a day for hiring domestic help to perform household tasks which an injured motorist cannot perform.

Official Insect Bill Is Defeated

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —A bill asking that the California dog-face butterfly be declared the official state insect was defeated in an Assembly committee Thursday.

The Governmental Organization Committee also turned down a measure to have the Fremontia Fremonti named the official state fossil.

Rocks Auctioned, Used On Windows

STANFORD (UPI)—A self-styled revolutionary group Thursday night auctioned rocks at Stanford University then broke into small groups to use their purchases to smash about a dozen windows in the Hoover Institution annex and the Bowman Alumni House.

There were no arrests reported.

'International' Night

The Foreign Student Club of College of Marin will sponsor an International Dinner Night at 7:30 tomorrow in the college cafeteria. Students will present ethnic food and entertainment featuring native arts, dancing, poetry and music.

No-Fault Opponents Shifting For Time

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Opponents of a bill to create a national no-fault auto insurance system may seek to avoid a direct up-or-down vote in the Senate this summer by trying to divert the bill for more study.

Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., said he would examine the bill this weekend to decide whether it would change the nation's judicial system sufficiently to require study by the Senate Judiciary Committee. He is the ranking Republican on that panel.

The bill would alter the judicial system by forbidding negligence suits in auto accidents unless the accident victim were so seriously hurt that medical and rehabilitation expenses exceeded $50,000 or loss of income exceeded $75,000.

Instead, the bill would require states tg put into effect a system in which damages would be paid by the automobile driver's insurance company without regard to who was at fault in the accident.

Supporters said this would speed settlements, result in more equitable settlements and cut the cost of auto insurance.

Consumer groups have campaigned for no-fault insurance for years, but opposition from lawyers and about two-thirds of the insurance industry has blocked its approval in all but a handful of state legislatures.

Consequently, the bill is likely to attract popularity and attention when it reaches the Senate floor this summer. In an election year, opponents may be reluctant to oppose it directly.

A motion to send the bill to the Judiciary Committee could serve their purpose. And Hruska said he would not propose that the Judiciary panel be given a deadline for returning the bill to the Senate.

The Judiciary Committee is likely to be less receptive to the bill than the Commerce Committee, which approved it Wednesday after months of consideration.

The administration favors the no-fault principle but has asked that the states be given more time to act. But when only two states passed no-fault bills this year, the Commerce Committee decided to act.

The federal bill would go farther than those enacted in Massachusetts, Florida, Connecticut and New Jersey. Those states would have to redraft their statutes by Jan. 1, 1974, or come under the federal plan.

The Senate bill would make insurance compulsory for all drivers and make it available to anyone with a driver's license and the money to pay the premium.

Feud Surfaces In The Common Market

LUXEMBOURG (UPI)—The Executive Commission of the European Common Market threatened today to resign if it is blocked from any talks on the political affairs of a united continent, market sources said.

The sources said the Council of Ministers, the market's chief decision-making body, responded with a compromise that would give the commission the right to participate in all talks about market institutions but not in discussions on matters outside the market — for gmstance, a European Security Conference.

Market commission and council officials met to consider the compromise.

At the heart of the crisis was a dispute over whether the Common Market shall be run solely by its national members governments, or shall have a political power of its own emanating from commission headquarters in Brussels.

The foreign ministers of the 10 nations of the enlarged Common Market met here today to plan the political part of the agenda for the summit meeting of their premiers and presidents in Paris in October.

But they were faced instead by the Market's commission, which traveled here with a letter from its president, Sicco L. Mansholt, demanding that the commission be allowed to join in all discussions on political cooperation, with no exception. The sources said the letter threatened the commission's resignation if the council refused.

The council, meeting without the commission, framed its compromise. Earlier, it had planned to conduct its meetings here in the usual way—with the commission allowed to sit in one some political discussions but excluded from others.

Braille Signs At Yellowstone

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (UPI)—Braille signs have been erected along a nature trail in Yellowstone National Park.

"Blindness is by no means a total barrier in experiencing the natural features and thermal phenomenon in the wilderness of Yellowstone," chief naturalist Bill Dunmire said Thursday.

A guide rope has been stretched along the length of the mile-long trail to help the blind find their way.

Coalition Is Formed To Fight Antibusing Stand

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A coalition of civil rights groups has opened a drive to kill Senate-passed antibusing legislation. One leader called it part of the greatest threat to equality since the end of Reconstruction.,

Representatives of the 127 groups which make up the National Leadership Conference on Civil Rights held an emergency meeting in New York City Thursday night to head off in the House the bill which the Senate passed 63 to 15 earlier this week.

Roy Wilkins, chairman of the conference, said he and other rights leaders feared the enactment of any form of suppression of busing would set precedents which might lead to erosion of other constitutional rights.

Wilkins said the House-passed measure and other pending proposals to curb busing are "the greatest threat to this country's pursuit of equality that has arisen since the end of the Reconstruction period."

The antibusing legislation which cleared the Senate was tacked on to a big higher education money bill. The rider would suspend for 18 months any court-ordered busing where the order involved is still subject to court appeal.

It would also prevent the federal government from allocating funds for busing unless local school officials request it. In addition it would prohibit all federally forced busing unless such is constitutionally required to protect minority rights.

Prospects for House passage of the measure were described as improved in view of the Senate action.

The conference appointed Howard Glickstein, a former staff director for the U.S. Civil Rights Commission, to coordinate its attack on the legislation and the "hysteria over school busing that is sweeping the nation."

Glickstein told reporters in Washington "I think a lot of us thought this could never happen. In the past all kind of silly amendments have been proposed but they have always been defeated."

He said the Senate's action "took us by surprise," and added that President Nixon's stand on the issue apparently provided the momentum needed for passage.

Sausalito Budget Session Tuesday

The Sausalito City Council's finance committee will take its first look at a $1,776,646 preliminary budget for 1972-73 at 8 p.m. Tuesday in city hall, the first in a series of budget study sessions planned.

The spending program proposed by City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr is approximately $3,000 less than this year's $1,779,187 budget figure and will leave unchanged Sausalito current tax rate of $1.485 per $100 of assessed valuation.

The city manager explained the budget decrease by saying he "believes strongly that we should endeavor to hold the line on municipal spending." He said the proposed budget includes no major changes from the city's 1971-72 spending program.

The budget which finance committee members Earl F. Dunphy and Stephen A. Fraser will begin scrutinizing Tuesday includes no additions to the current city staff of 75 persons, St. Cyr said.

Included in the proposal is a $101,644 capitol improvements budget, down significantly from the present $269,824 budget. The city manager said the decrease results from the fact all street improvement projects, now listed under the capitol budget category, are placed under the street improvement budget for the first time in the proposed budget, bringing that spending program from $13,300 in 1972-72 to $81,000 in the next fiscal year. "This is simply a bookkeeping change, St. Cyr said.

Capitol improvements proposed for 1972-73 are resurfacing of the Martin Luther King School tennis courts, water main improvements, installation of a traffic signal at Bridgeway and Napa Street and a median strip on Bridgeway from Coloma Street to the north city limits.

Other improvements recommended by the St. Cyr include repairs to the municipal fishing pier, construction of a storm drain on Edwards Avenue, resurfacing of Municipal Parking Lots No. 2 and 3 and miscellaneous street and sewer improvements.

St. Cyr noted Sausalito's miscellaneous budget will be up approximately $38,000 from $78,133 to $116,268. He said most of that increase will go to hike the city's reserved fund from $30,273 to $63,469.

Other proposed budgets for next year (with this year's figures in parentheses) for various departments are: city council, $12,900 ($12,600); city manager, $14,013 ($38,734); civil service, $1,255 ($1,145); finance, $12,774 ($12,438); city treasurer, no expenditure since the post has been abolished by voters ($945); city clerk, $23,701 ($23,665); city attorney. $19,600 ($19,600); planning, $25,910 ($22,561); police, $465,717 ($467,874); fire, $342,702 ($334,153), ambulance $15,492 ($14,728); building inspector $14,932 ($14,511); street and subdrain maintenance, $178,828 ($169,860); street trees, $5,430 ($6,135); street construction $17,920 ($12,222); street lighting and maintenance, $34,659 ($29,008); sewer maintenance $24,000 ($24,000); parks, $46,374 ($47,704); recreation, $12,365 ($11,073); library, $71,631 ($69,742) public buildings and lands, $7,939 ($11,230); parking lots, $21,348 ($20,536), and parking meters $30,720 ($28,975).

At its Tuesday session the finance committee will consider budgets for the council, city manager, civil service, finance, city clerk, attorney, planning department and public buildings and land.

231,371 Pot Initiative Signatures

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Supporters of an initiative to legalize the use of marijuana have collected about two-thirds of the signatures needed to place the measure on the November ballot, it was reported yesterday.

Secretary of State Edmund G. Grown Jr. said 231,371 valid signatures were filed with his office during the initial filing period which ended Monday.

A total of 8,421 signatures were submitted from Marin County, of which 5,802 or 68.5 per cent were valid, according to the Marin County Elections Office.

The Sonoma County of Elections said 2,751 valid signatures had been filed on 282 sections of the petition.

Brown said another 94,133 signatures must be submitted by the June 15 supplemental filing deadline to qualify the measure.

The initiative provides that no person 18 years old or older could be punished criminally or denied any right or privilege because of planting, harvesting, processing, transporting, possessing or using marijuana.

Madonna And Child Painting Is Stolen

A gilt-framed painting of a Madonna and Child, worth $200, was stolen Tuesday from a car parked in the lot of the Boat House restaurant in Sausalito, police reported yesterday.

The painting's owner, Edward O'Day of Los Altos Hills, said the work was taken through an open car window sometime between 10:30 and 11 p.m.

One-Shot Assembly Candidates' Forum

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

One Democratic and two Republican candidates for Assembly last night found themselves in frequent agreement with one another on issues raised at a forum held by the Irate Taxpayers of Marin.

Solid unanimity was especially evident in their agreement that the absent incumbent, William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, should be turned out of office.

The three were Democrat Harry J. Moore of Novato, principal of a Novato junior high school, and Republicans Edward J. Gilmore of Ross, an insurance company executive in San Francisco, and Robert D. Weinmann of San Rafael, sales manager of an insurance company in San Francisco.

Winifred Frederick, moderator of the forum, said Bagley said he was unable to attend because a subcommittee he chairs was meeting in Los Angeles. He submitted written answers, however, to eight questions put to all candidates by the taxpayers group.

Also absent were Democrat Joseph J. Franaszek of Tiburon, a university student, and Bill Mack Webber of Petaluma, unopposed candidate for the Peace and Freedom Party's nomination in the Seventh Assembly District, which includes all of Marin and Sonoma south of Santa Rosa.

Mrs. Frederick said Franaszek failed to submit written answers, and that Webber had not been invited because his candidacy had been unknown to her until it was pointed out by an Independent-Journal reporter.

Twenty-five persons attended the two-hour session at Sir Francis Drake High School, most of them apparently campaign workers for the candidates. It was the only Assembly candidates forum scheduled in Marin for the primary election.

All three candidates present said they opposed the proposed state voucher system to extend tax funds to private and parochial schools. Bagley wrote that he had voted for a bill to institute a pilot voucher plan. Gilmore said that the vouchers would finance "a lot of kooky private schools with wild socialistic ideas."

Moore said it would cost taxpayers $250 million in vouchers to finance private schools, and Weinmann denounced vouchers as unconstitutional.

All four opposed a complete exemption from school taxes for property owners without children in public schools, with Weinmann urging that school financing be shifted from property taxes to increases in sales and other taxes.

All four opposed the present system of separate school override taxes without a vote of the people. Gilmore said that no one "has the right to dig down into my pocket and extract money without my say so, and I say so through the ballot."

The four candidates also generally favored limiting the power of government to keep increasing property taxes, and favored state payment of all costs for trials for crimes committed in San Quentin Prison.

All strongly opposed imposition of a state property tax to finance education. Gilmore said that "once the state gets its hands on your property tax, it'll go like a yo-yo — mostly up." Weinmann said such a tax "creates a Neanderthal man."

Moore, Gilmore and Weinmann favored an income tax deduction to encourage adult children to support their aged parents, but Bagley opposed it, saying the state-ordered rates set last year by the Reagan administration were "much too high" and were going to be cut. The rates determine the amount of reimbursement the state orders paid to it by adult children of parents on welfare.

A rare variety of opinion came over the candidates' attitudes toward regional government. Gilmore said he opposed any such government, declaring, "I want to see local control of our destiny."

Moore said he would favor regional governmental agencies only if they automatically expired after a few years, or at least were reviewed to determine whether they should continue. Bagley favored consolidation of existing single-purpose regional agencies.

Weinmann branded regional government as "the greatest monster of all time, and criticized the Regional Water Quality Control Board for banning bay dumping of dredged mud with high concentrations of poisonous metals. He said the Bay Conservation and Development Commission, Association of Bay Area Governments "and all the rest should be shut off entirely."

In other comments, Moore said "the issue is whether you like your taxes, and Mr. Bagley is the man who has been writing them as Mr. Reagan's right-hand man in writing taxes." Moore also suggested that the power of Sacramento lobbyists be curbed by limiting "their terms in office," but did not say how this could be done.

Gilmore said Bagley was "not listening to the people," especially to their cry for tax relief. Politicians are taking advantage of public apathy, Gilmore said, adding that the public's only solutions to such politicians are "to throw the guy out — either that or shoot him."

The three candidates present differed on whether firearms should be registered, with Moore supporting registration but Gilmore and Weinmann opposing it.

All three opposed legalization of marijuana.

Pressed by a questioner in the audience on how he would finance education, Weinmann said, "I haven't given it that much thought." Moore added, "don't take from the poor and give to the rich — that's socialistic."

The taxpayer's group endorsed Gilmore for Bagley's seat. Winifred Frederick, of the group, today said the members believed that Gilmore better presented the issues in the campaign and had better solutions.

She said the group also opposed formation of a proposed countywide park bond district, and said it did so because it does not favor formation of a new taxing district which might, in effect, create another level of government.)

Mrs. Beard Due To Leave Denver

DENVER (UPI)—Mrs. Dita Davis Beard, 53, the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. lobbyist and central figure in Senate investigations into an alleged ITT donation pledge to the Repulican national convention, leaves here next Thursday.

Mrs. Beard has been in the Denver area for treatment of a heart ailment. "She'll go someplace for a sabbatical," said Dr. L.M. Radetsky, her physician. "I don't know where she'll go...but I don't think she'll go to Washington."

Home From Greek Jail, Man Pleads In Old Case

A Forest Knolls man, who has been languishing in a Greek jail for two years on a drug trafficking conviction, returned to Marin yesterday to plead innocent to three-year-old charges here.

Robert Franklin Black, 29, pleaded innocent in Marin Superior Court to charges of selling marijuana and LSD and possessing marijuana stemming from a raid in January 1969 that netted a $350,000 cache of LSD, hashish and marijuana.

Only three months ago, Black was knifed in Korydalos Prison in Greece while protecting another American from an angry mob of Greek prisoners.

Black, jailed in Greece for smuggling hashish in 1970, was arrested with four other Americans after their plane, pursued from Lebanon by authorities, developed engine trouble and landed in Heraklion, Greece. More than 1,400 pounds of hashish were found in the plane.

Black, according to Marin Deputy Dist. Atty. J. Michael Anthony, was recently released after serving two years of a 10-year sentence.

He was greeted by a federal warrant charging him with conspiring in the United States to smuggle the hashish into Greece, and a local warrant accusing him in the Marin case, Anthony said.

The Marin charges stem from a raid on a shop in Tamalpais Valley during which eight persons were arrested. One was never charged and charges against the others were dismissed for various reasons, including delay in prosecuting.

The delay had been caused by the district attorney's office not realizing until eight months later that an appeals court had made a decision on an appeal in the case.

The shop, which sold mod clothes and other items, was believed by agents to be a hub of drug trafficking. Agents arranged to buy $75,000 worth of drugs before making the raid.

Italians Believe Mafia Exists

ROME (UPI)—Ten years of investigation by a special parliamentary committee has established at least one thing about the Mafia in Italy—most Italians believe it exists.

But none of them admit to having anything to do with the so-called "Honored Society" of Sicily—which these days is expanding from its Sicilian stronghold to many profitable areas of business on the Italian mainland.

The investigatory committee published a 1,200-page interim report Thursday on its ten years of work under two parliaments.

'Aquatic Medicine' Course Is Offered

SAN DIEGO — The belief of a Scripps Institution of Oceanography physician that water-related injuries and diseases must become an integral part of the study and practice of medicine has resulted in a popular new University of California Extension course being offered here.

Dr. William Orris, staff physician at SIO and a qualified scuba diver, believes that such diseases will have a growing impact on medical practice across the nation.

"You may practice in Kansas but the odds are all for you seeing an increasing number of patients with water-related illnesses," Orris warns.

Two factors have altered our concept of disease, he believes.

First, jet airplane travel has virtually eliminated endemic or regional medicine in most of the United States. Constant, inexpensive air travel has scattered Americans — businessmen, scientist, servicemen, students, tourists — around the globe.

That fact, combined with a growing familiarity with water as a source of food and recreation means someone who is skin diving off Malaysia on Tuesday can be sitting at home in the Midwest a day later with some sort of exotic water-related disease.

"Information regarding water-related diseases and injuries is so scattered among medical journals, research papers and popular magazines there is no way practicing physicians can use it, let alone be aware of it," Orris says. He envisions a San Diego-based aquatic medical and research foundation to translate research into usable material for practicing MDs.

In his course "Aquatic Medicine" offered for the first time this winter, Orris makes information available from the fields of virology, bacteriology, parasitology, pharmacology, immunology and diving physiology. The course is designed for physicians, physiologists, commercial and sport divers, and world travelers. (University of California News Service)

Bill Would Exempt Nuts From Taxation

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Assembly has passed a bill declaring that nuts are not "hot prepared food products" and exempting them from sales and use taxes.

Connecticut In Drive To Deter Theft

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI)—A new program to reduce thefts in homes by etching an identification number on valuable property has been unveiled by Connecticut state police.

Etching a number, such as a driver's license number, on valuables would make it easier to trace stolen property, State Police Commissioner Cleveland B. Fuessenich said Thursday.

(A similar program is underway in several Marin and Southern Sonoma cities.)

Covered by the program through each of the 11 state police troops and the 85 towns under state police jurisdiction will be a total of 400,000 of Connecticut's three million residents.

Fuessenich said Connecticut is the first state in the nation to inaugurate the program which has been used in Monterey Park, Calif., since 1963, as well as in other communities.

State police said they will loan the etching tools for residents to use on such items as television sets, stereo sets, tape recorders and cameras.

In Monterey Park, 4,000 persons have taken part in the program. Of the 4,000 homes, only six have been burglarized. Of 7,000 nonparticipating homes, 1,700 were burglarized.

When a theft is reported, a description and the identifying number will be sent to the National Crime Information Center in Washington, D.C., providing authorities with an instantaneous record.

The advantage of the program, Fuessenich said, is that a suspect caught with property having numbers etched on it would have some explaining to do.

The presence of an engraved number also would deter "fences" who deal in stolen goods.

One Connecticut-based insurance firm, the Hartford Insurance Group, said it would grant a 10 per cent reduction on the basic premium for state homeowners policies if policy holders meet requirements of the new program.

League Endorsing All Lands In Park

The Marin Conservation League has written to congressmen committees committee considering the proposed Golden Gate National Recreation Area endorsing inclusion of all of the Marin and San Francisco lands specified in two bills under consideration.

The league, according to Vice President Robert F. Raab, advocates inclusion of all of Fort Baker, along with Forts Barry and Cronkhite, the three Marin Headlands state parks, all of Marincello, Witter, Green Gulch and Slide ranches and the Banducci and Caddel properties.

All of the Olema Valley, should be included, the league advocated, and Raab said that recent sales in the area indicate the land can be purchased for a lower price than earlier believed.

The league, however, did not recommend that Wolfe Back Ridge and the upper slope of Tamalpais Valley be included, since these are residential areas and such a recommendation might endanger the whole project, Raab said.

The league also recommended against inclusion of Audubon Canyon Ranch, Duxberry Reef, Mount Tamalpais and Angel Island state parks because they are already privately or publicly protected facilities.

Windsor Health Held Not Good

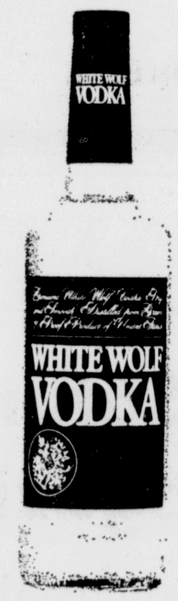

PARIS (UPI)—The Duke of Windsor, who will be 78 next month, is being treated for an undisclosed illness.

Sources knowledgeable about his health said the outlook was not good.

The duke's poor health was made public when his niece, Queen Elizabeth of England, interrupted her official visit to France last week to visit him and he was not well enough to greet her downstairs. Instead, the queen went to his room for the reunion, their first since 1965.

TV Taken

Pool Owners Are Urged To Check Wiring

Homeowners with swimming pools should check to see that electrical wiring is in good repair in order to prevent dangerous current leaks from filter pumps, motors, poolside lights or other appliances, according to Herbert F. Wimmer, chief Marin building inspector.

"This danger is so serious," he said, "that the national electrical code now requires all electrical equipment at storable backyard pools be connected to a protective device called a ground fault interrupter."

The device, he said, senses current leakage and cuts off the power in time to prevent a large shock.

Special features you'll enjoy:

Tomorrow the Golden Gate Bridge, the world's most famous span, turns 35-years-old. To celebrate this birthday of the bridge, the Independent-Journal's Marin Magazine will feature an article by Dorothy Gardiner detailing the bridge's past, present and future. And accompanying her article will be some rare photographs showing the construction and early years of the bridge. It is a tribute to one of man's greatest engineering feats, and a treat for students of Bay Area regional history.

Hubert Voight of Novato knew Hollywood in its most colorful era. And he knew it intimately. Voight was a press agent for major Hollywood studios during the time when the entire country was motion picture and movie star conscious, and his work brought him into contact with some of the industry's most famous figures. With a sharp memory and a lively sense of humor, Voight recalls the golden era of the movies in an interview conducted by I-J reporter Frank Farrara for tomorrow's I-J supplement.

Sewer Link Policy Study Is Delayed

The Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District board again last night came to no decision on whether to make changes in annexation and connection policies which might halt or hinder new building in the area.

Instead, the board put over to a meeting at 7:30 p.m. next Thursday at Marinwood Community Center further consideration of the matter.

The postponement was made so that possible additions and improvements to the district's treatment plant, now at near capacity, can be discussed first.

At issue is whether the district, faced with strict new pollution prevention standards as well as a plant which can't handle much more sewage, should make additions to the system or discontinue accepting new land annexations and hookups.

Representatives of homeowner groups have asked that no further annexations take place until both San Rafael and Marin County complete new master plans and that no individual connections be made until the sanitary district is in complete compliance with the state regulations.

In a letter read to the board last night, engineer and landowner Carlos Gonzales said he didn't think the homeonwer groups represented the majority of taxpayers in the district.

Furthermore, he said the district's standard fees for annexation and connections ($100) per acre for annexation and $200 per connection) would go a long way toward paying for plant improvements if, for example, a 200-acre parcel is annexed.

A lawyer representing a New Jersey bank which owns 200 acres north of the Civic Center said, as have other landowners, that a moratorium or halt of annexation and connections would prevent development of the property.

Michael Smith, an owner of the Smith Ranch property, said such a halt would force landowners to form their own sanitary district.

One board member, Sesto F. Lucchi, suggested connections be limited to 800 within the next six months and be reserved for land already in the district. He also proposed a maximum of 250 connections per year after that, "unless a dire public need is demonstrated."

At the last meeting, board member Gene H. Dyer had moved that annexations be temporarily halted until adequate treatment facilities are at least planned and that no new connections be made until it is assured the plant can handle them.

Board chairman Frank Solomon Jr. last night asked the district's attorney, Philip D. Assaf, to provide legal opinions on the various proposals for the next meeting.

Witness Unavailable, Davis Trial Delayed

SAN JOSE — Angela Davis's murder-kidnap-conspiracy trial, nearing an end after 13 weeks, today was postponed until Tuesday because a rebuttal witness is not available until then.

Prosecutor Albert W. Harris Jr. asked Judge Richard E. Arnason for the continuance yesterday when lawyers met with the judge in chambers to discuss legal matters.

All that is left in the trial, after any rebuttal witnesses are heard, are arguments by both sides and instructions by the judge. The jury, which has not been sequestered, probably will get the complicated case at the end of next week. The jurors will be locked up during deliberations.

After the prosecution presented nearly 100 witnesses and about 200 exhibits in an attempt to link Miss Davis to the shootout in Marin in which Judge Harold J. Haley and three others died, the defense presented only three days of testimony.

Miss Davis, who did not take the witness stand, presented the defense opening argument. It still was undecided today whether she will give a closing statement, which would give her a chance to tell her story without undergoing cross-examination.

Meanwhile, Miss Davis's codefendant, San Quentin convict Ruchell Magee, whose case was split from hers last year, was assigned a judge in San Francisco Superior Court to hear his trial.

Latest jurist named to the case, which has had a history of short tenure for judges, was Morton R. Colvin.

Magee's case was transferred Monday to San Francisco from Marin after visiting Judge Leonard M. Ginsburg of Tulare County granted a change of venue.

He said he chose the crowded courts of the neighboring city because he thought the convict stands the best chance of a fair trial there. Miss Davis had unsuccessfully sought to have her trial moved to San Francisco but was sent to Santa Clara County instead.

Colvin, assigned yesterday, said he would later set a trial date for Magee.

Dedication Ceremony Set For Troubled 'Transpo 72'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government dedicates its first international transportation exposition today amid a flurry of speeches, aerial acrobatics, and the fear of traffic jams from an expected 1.4 million visitors to the nine-day fair.

Sprawled over 700 acres at Dulles International Airport in northern Virginia, the fair, dubbed "Transpo 72," represents a $60 million governmentindustry investment. It opens officially to the public Saturday after today's preview.

But it has not been without problems. Two hoped for "stars" rejected invitations. The British-French builders of the Concorde supersonic airliner turned down a bid to show off the 1,200 mile per hour SST, as did the Soviet Union, which expects to put its first supersonic airliner into commercial service shortly.

Nor has the weather cooperated with the builders. Last month high winds toppled 28 of the exposition buildings.

And the exposition has a vocal critic in Congress. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., has termed the exposition the most "ineptly planned federal undertaking since the battle of Little Big Horn." Proxmire was so outraged that he called for an investigation into the way the government let contracts for the exposition.

Pessimists predicted Transpo may trigger one of the problems its experts are hoping to solve—congestion.

With tens of thousands of visitors expected to drive to the show over a narrow highway network, the critics see a possibility of mile-long traffic jams. But fair officials claim they have been working on the traffic problem since initial planning, and expect to keep the cars moving.

Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe is one of the show's most enthusiastic backers. Pointing to exhibits ranging from 300 m.p.h. tracked air cushion vehicles to air bag safety devices for automobiles, Volpe said the exposition is a good investment for the economy and he predicted 300,000 businessmen will visit the show, including 50,000 from abroad.

Protests Force Schools' Closure

FIREBAUGH (UPI) — The two schools in this small Fresno County community were ordered closed Thursday following a demonstration by a group of Mexican-American parents.

About 60 persons, members of the Chicano Committee for Educational Rights, picketed the elementary school calling for more Spanish surnamed teachers and more Chicano oriented programs.

Firebaugh Police Chief Howard Manes termed the demonstrators peaceful and orderly. But School Superintendent Morris Kyle said the picketed school and a junior high would remain closed until Tuesday for the "purpose of protecting the safety and welfare of the students."

New Plan On Environs Endorsed

A revised Sonoma State College environs plan that includes more open space around the campus was endorsed last night by the Rohnert Park Planning Commission.

The master plan prepared by the Sonoma County Planning Department had been changed to reflect the college's position to keep the campus on the edge of Rohnert Park and Cotati and to avoid making it the center of urban development.

Commission secretary Sandra Nelson said the plan was approved on a 4-1 vote with Raymond Goff dissenting, saying he liked the original county plan better.

The endorsement also recommended that commercial zoning not be rigidly set in the plan and that more study be given to zoning land on East Cotati Avenue between the Cotati city limits and Snyder Lane.

In other business, the commission set a special meeting for June 2 at 7:30 p.m. to hear plans by Forhim Corp. to develop 75 acres on Lancaster Avenue on the south side of the city. Harold Heers said plans include all single-family homes, nine miniparks and bicycle paths.

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

Black Point Inn Had A Party In Early History Of This Area

The 1880s must have been roaring times in Marin.

Now long forgotten, even by most of the oldtimers, are many of the inns, taverns and roadhouses that flourished from Sausalito to the north county line and west to the coast. But here and there a few of them (or their remains) still stand — albeit their activities are considerably less boisterous than they were in their heydays.

Among them is the historical Black Point Inn, now operated by Jess and Dottie Fisher at Black Point as a restaurant and bar, and frequented by occasional travelers along Highway 37, visitors from various parts of the Bay Area — and a considerable number of residents from throughout Marin. Those from North Marin naturally are in the majority, but many from other parts of the county find it a pleasant drive at dusk to Black Point.

Jess took over the inn about 10 years ago and set about remodeling it — a task which brought him a fair amount of headaches in the process. The inn was built long before construction codes as we know them were in existence. And changes invariably involve a number of other corrections which hardly anyone would consider necessary until they are pointed out by an alert building inspector. Sometimes it's less expensive to start from scratch — but then you lose the charm of the old structure.

Jess managed to keep the inn's major historical architectural attractions and today the inn is a comfortable place to relax and dine on some of chef Jack Cardini's specialties. Incidentally Jack now features prime rib every night the dining room is open (Wednesdays through Sundays). He is also serving silver salmon from Washington, which has become very popular. And I checked on his former skill preparing veal scallopini — he hasn't lost his touch here.

This summer, the Black Point Inn swimming pool will again be open from noon to dusk, starting June 10. The tab is 75 cents. No youngsters.

SPEAKING of a bygone era, can you remember this one?

The exact time was not identified, but it must have been during the prohibition period in the 20s, for beers were listed as "soft drinks."

An old menu of the Orpheus Grill, which at one time flourished at 622 Fourth Street, San Rafael, featured these food prices:

Sirloin steak, 75 cents; sirloin steak for two, $1.40; tenderloin and porterhouse steaks, 90 cents. Lamb chops were 60 cents, pork chops 50 cents, veal cutlets 40 cents. If served with Spanish fried onions you paid an additional 10 cents.

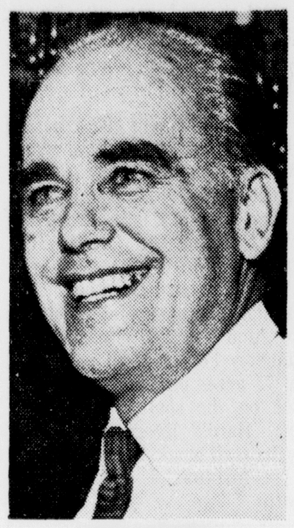

Salmon and sole were 40 cents — as were oysters, any style from fried to served on the half shell. A fried egg sandwich was 15 cents and for a like amount you could get pie and coffee with it. And is those days a pint of near beer went for 20 or 25 cents.

Those were the years — but would you want them back?

Sal Iachino apparently is another one who believes that middle of the room tables are generally avoided, and so he has run a low partition down the center, with tables on either side. In addition, he has also installed a decorative arch, with nooks for fancy Italian decanters and glassware.

Now special on the dinner

JESS FISHER
At historic inn

menu Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays is cannelloni and also lasagne at $3.75. Romulus will be open on Monday, Memorial Day, serving dinners from 3 p.m. The regular menu will be in force.

THE NORMANDIE, French restaurant on the San Rafael Miracle Mile, will be closed for the entire month of June while owners Michael Braud and Roger Minhondo take off on a vacation in their native France.

Reopening date will be July 5.

THE SIZE AND SOUNDS of the Dick Saltzman Orchestra, which plays at Holiday Inn in Terra Linda on Sunday nights, have been augmented with the recent addition of Shep Shepherd, formerly with Count Basie's Orchestra, on drums. This boosts the Saltzman group from a trio to a foursome.

NATURAL AND ORGANIC FOODS are on the fare at the recently opened Zebeedee, 42 Red Hill Avenue, on the San Anselmo Miracle Mile — but the menu is not limited to that.

This little restaurant (located where the Carrot used to be) has been redecorated and given a new touch with outside tables. In addition to fresh fruits, greens and grains, you'll find a variety of sandwiches for lunch and such dinner entrees as teriyaki steak, Cornish game hen with almond and orange sauce, clams bordelaise and tempura.

Breakfasts feature pancakes, waffles, French toast, omelets and other egg dishes.

Hours of service are from 10:30 a.m. to midnight Wednesdays through Mondays, with extended hours to 3 a.m. Fridays and Saturdays. Closed on Tuesdays.

Marin Dining And Wining

NEW DISHES are where you find them, and one restaurateur who is constantly adding something to the menu that simply must be reported is Ursula Valan at the Grotto. I find it difficult to keep up with her.

Her latest offering is called "Keddgerie." It probably is new to Bay Area restaurants, though Englishmen and Scots will find it a familiar item. As the story goes, the British took an old East Indian recipe and adapted it to the use of finnan haddie from North Atlantic waters.

All I know is that it's delicious — but then I always was a pushover for finnan haddie.

ANOTHER MEXICAN RESTAURANT CHAIN (this one already established in the North Bay) that is well on the road to expansion is the Old Mexico Restaurant owned by Tony Lopez of Santa Rosa.

He has two places in that city — one in Montgomery Village and the other in the Casa Rosa Hotel on Santa Rosa Avenue — and one which was established even earlier at Clear Lake Highlands in Lake County.

Now he's planning to open in Petaluma about Aug. 1 and has been dickering for a location on the highway in Novato, which may or may not go through. If it doesn't undoubtedly Tony will look for another place here.

THE WINE ADVISORY BOARD, 717 Market Street, San Francisco, is offering a new handblown glass for appetizer wines such as sherry, vermouth, port and madeira.

It is also quite suitable for brandy. The glasses are included in the board's catalog of wine related items and may be ordered by mail. Inquire for information and prices.

CONGRATULATIONS to Guy Francoz and Gilbert Duquesne, who opened Le Camembert French restaurant at 200 Shoreline Highway, Tamalpais Valley, just a year ago this month and have been busy beyond belief ever since.

And now it appears they may soon have additional cause to celebrate. They have applied for an on sale general liquor license, which is bound to make their restaurant even more popular. It probably won't be validated until sometime in July.

SAN RAFAEL JOE'S will be open Memorial Day, Monday, for business as usual.

Furniture Stolen

Two statues, a bedspread and a lamp base, all valued at $226, were taken from R. B. Furniture at 3773 Redwood Highway, Los Ranchitos, about 8 p.m. May 18, sheriff's deputies said yesterday.

'Emergency' In Peninsula Courts

PALO ALTO (UPI)—The first judicial emergency order in California has been declared in the Palo Alto-Mountain View Municipal Court to handle the trials of 184 persons arrested during an antiwar rally, according to court authorities.

The emergency was declared by Chief Justice Donald Wright of the state Supreme Court. It is the first of its kind since the Assembly in 1971 passed legislation allowing for changes in judicial procedures when a large number of arrests threatens to clog the court system.

Municipal Court Judge Edward Scoyen said Thursday the order became necessary when 184 defendants arrested in an antiwar demonstration in Palo Alto April 21 demanded their rights for individual jury trials and "speedy" hearings.

Joint Pact Considered For Hospital

The Petaluma Hospital District board agreed last night to consider an affiliation with Pacific Medical Center of San Francisco to build and manage a new hospital.

District Administrator Joseph Horner said Pacific Medical Center and the district board would form a new nonprofit corporation to be directed by the local board. The corporation would finance, build and operate the hospital planned for East Petaluma.

Plans for the hospital had been scheduled for a hearing Wednesday before the Bay Area Health Facilities Planning Council, but the board agreed to ask for a postponement as requested by owners of private Petaluma General Hospital.

Owners of the private hospital also have plans fo a new hospital in East Petaluma and asked that both be heard at the same time so they can be given equal consideration. A two-month delay is expected.

Horner said the affiliation with Pacific Medical Center will expand medical education programs and continue the expansion of medical specialties.

The board set a special meeting for noon Wednesday at Hillcrest Hospital to discuss details of the association with medical center representatives.

The proposed 1972-73 budget also will be presented with the recommendation that the hospital tax rate of 4 cents per $100 assessed valuation be discontinued. Taxes bring only $35,000 per year for hospital operations.

Cotati Service Station Robbed By Pair Of $100

The Fast Gas Service station on Old Redwood Highway in Cotati, was robbed today of approximately $100 in cash.

Attendant Robert Grader, 19, told police that a car with two men drove in at 2:15 a.m. While one stayed in the car, the other loaded 12 quarts of oil into the car and simulating a gun in his right pocket, told Grader to give him money from the cash drawer and his wallet. The attendant was then told to stand against a wall in the managers office and the pair drove away.

The robber was described as in his early 30s, six feet, one inch tall, wearing an afro style haircut with long side burns. Police said a wide piece of white tape across his nose indicates he may have recently broken his nose.

The car was identified as a black 1962 Chevrolet Impala with Y and C in the license plates.

Firemen's Barbecue Slated Sunday

The Marinwood Volunteer Fireman's barbecue will be held this Sunday from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. near the Miller Creek School on Las Gallinas Avenue.

A charge will be made for the barbecue, and proceeds will go to building new tables and a barbecue pit at the site.

Faculty Hits New Sonoma State Name

The Sonoma State College faculty yesterday voted to oppose changing the college's name, saying they find the proposed new title "repugnant and abhorrent."

The Academic Senate approved a resolution opposing the new name of California State College at Sonoma, approved Wednesday by the State College Board of Trustees.

The faculty members said the attempt at uniformity would cause an identity crisis and complained that the action was arbitrary with no one on campus consulted.

The final resolution approved was a much stronger statement than the one originally prepared by Dr. Cheryl Petersen of the political science department.

The resolution will be sent to all members of the board of trustees and to the coordinating Council on Higher Education which will make a final judgment on the name change next Wednesday.

The reaction from students and staff members has also been basically negative with many complaining the new name will cause confusion since it leads people to believe the college is located in the City of Sonoma, rather than Rohnert Park.

Apartment Units Win Panel Nod

The Fairfax Planning Commission last night approved a 19-unit apartment project to be built by Gentry Development Co. and known as Village West No. 2.

In recommending that the city council grant final approval to the project, the planning commission set certain conditions for the development, according to Commission Secretary Ernestine Healy.

No tree is to be cut down on the property, adjacent to the same company's 68-unit Village West No. 1 in west Fairfax, without planning commission approval, according to Mrs. Healy.

Furthermore, the company agreed that about a quarter of an acre next to a creek be deeded as open space and that no grading be done in the stream bed. The area between the creek and Olema Road is to be left in a natural state, Mrs. Healy said, but debris there now is to be removed. A natural mound off Sir Francis Drake Boulevard is also to be left.

The commission also recommended that the city council go along with the Town of Corte Madera and the City of Larkspur in adopting a policy which would preserve ridge tops in Central Marin as open space.

The commission granted a conditional use permit for James Carter O.D. to operate an optometrist shop at 21 Bolinas Road and a lot line change for Louis E. Morani at 12 Baywood Court.

Open Space Bill Squeaks Through

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly has narrowly passed legislation preventing future "major abuses" of the Williamson Act, which is aimed at preserving open space around cities.

A bill by Assemblyman John Dunlap D-Napa, was approved Thursday on a 42-29 vote, the bare majority required. But Assemblyman William M. Ketchum, R-Paso Robles, delayed its passage to Senate by receiving permission for the vote to be reconsidered later.

Supporters of the measure asserted the major beneficiaries of the act were big landowners such as the Irvine Co. in Orange County.

Water Firm Takeover Is Endorsed

A proposal that the privately owned Stinson Beach Water Company be purchased by the Marin Municipal Water District has been endorsed by the local fire protection and water boards.

At a joint meeting Wednesday, the Stinson Beach Fire Protection District board and the Stinson Beach County Water District board agreed that fire protection and water needs of the area will be better served if Marin Municipal takes over the water company.

George P. Leonard, owner of the water company, has made known his willingness to sell the company for $110,000, the amount of cash he reports investing in improvements in the water company.

In February, a report from the Mill Valley engineering firm of Bala and Strandgaard said the present company water distribution system could not deliver the amount of hydrant flows needed for adequate fire protection.

The engineer's report prompted Stinson volunteer fire chief George H. White to call the town a "fire trap" which could be destroyed by a summer blaze.

Mausoleum Looted Of Window, Brass Door

Grave robbers took a window and a heavy brass door from a family mausoleum in Olema Cemetery during the past weekend, sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

The 300 pound door, worth more than $800, and the rear window were removed from the Grossi family mausoleum between 3 p.m. Thursday and 3 p.m. Monday, deputies said.

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE
By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Sometimes The Key To Victory Comes From Foes' Line Of Play

The correct play often depends on your cards, but sometimes you must take into consideration which form of bridge you are playing. In some hands, moreover, you must be guided by what your opponent seems to be doing. A sophisticated enemy will try to deceive you, of course, but he won't play the hand like a complete idiot. If you try to make sense of his plays, you can often tell what kind of hand he has.

BIG CARD PLAY

South won the first trick with the king of diamonds, cashed dummy's ace and king of clubs, and then led the king of spades from dummy. East naturally took the ace of spades and returned a high diamond. South played the ace of diamonds, and West ruffed.

Perhaps West hadn't thought very hard or perhaps he was playing match-point bridge (in which it is very important to stop declarer from making an overtrick). At any rate, West ruffed with the deuce of hearts and led a spade.

Dummy's queen won, and South ruffed a spade. He cashed the queen of clubs, discarding a diamond from dummy, and led a heart. The ace and king of hearts fell together, and South made his game contract.

CLUB HURRY

West should have read the entire South hand from declarer's line of play. The hurry to cash dummy's top clubs meant that South had the queen of clubs and wanted to discard a loser from dummy on it. Then dummy's spade lead surely meant that South was trying to get to his hand for the queen of clubs by ruffing a spade. Why didn't South lead trumps instead of spade? South must be missing the king as well as the ace of hearts.

RUFF AN ACE

Having come to this conclusion, West should ruff the ace of diamonds with the ace of hearts. Then West leads his remaining trump to his partner's king. East cashes a diamond trick, and South is down one.

Rather obvious when you come to think of it.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠- A 10 6
♥- K
♦- Q J 10 9 8 6
♣- 10 4 2.
What do you say?

Answer: Pass (or bid two diamonds if you use weak two-bids). Very few experts would open this hand with three diamonds.

A typical three-bid should be based on a seven-card suit (instead of just six) with little or no side strength (instead of an ace and a king on the side).

Session Changed

The regularly scheduled Sonoma County Board of Supervisors meeting has been canceled for Monday. The Tuesday meeting will begin at 9 a.m. instead of 10 a.m.

Arts Fete Date

The Sausalito Art Center and Arts Association May festival will be held tomorrow, Sunday and Monday. The Independent-Journal yesterday erroneously reported that the event would be held today as well.

A STAINED GLASS wall consisting of six panels four feet wide by 12 feet tall is the largest of many architectural designs created by Sausalito artist Rosalis Hackney. She works on one of the panels in rented space at Pier 3 on the San Francisco waterfront.

SOME HUGE CREATIONS

Rosalis Hackney: Expert In Art Of Stained Glass

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Fifty-two of the more than 200 artists displaying work at this weekend's Sausalito Arts Festival at the Sausalito Art Center are women —among them Rosalis Hackney, a specialist in stained glass.

To most, stained glass means church windows. But Rosalis's primary interest is in huge creations used architecturally or in large freestanding sculpture.

Unfortunately, fair visitors will see only smaller examples of her work, for the big pieces are installed in various places, such as the series of six panels four feet wide by 12 feet tall forming a 30-foot-long wall at the First Federal Savings and Loan building in Bellingham, Wash.

"This was such a huge undertaking," she said, "that I had to rent space at Pier 3 on the San Francisco waterfront, and five or six people helped me. The panels were so heavy I prayed every day they would not slip and crash, and I guess my guardian angel was watching over me. The work requires a great deal of physical strength and assistance from other people."

Her other large work includes a series of three-dimensional glass panels for the new Engineers Club in San Francisco and three-dimensional windows for Andre's in San Francisco as well as leaded glass windows for St. Francis Episcopal Church in Novato.

Rosalis said three-dimensional glass creations are her special interest now. "There is a lot of quibbling about whether stained glass is a craft or an art — I'm interested in promoting it as art," she said.

She said her three-dimensional work may be sculpture or panels of clear glass with free form designs overlaid on both sides of the glass.

"With overlays you have a million more colors to work with," she said.

HER MOST recent work in sculptural form is a nine-foot-tall piece designed to stand in the middle of a fountain at the Teachers Union Building in Sacramento.

"I wish I could make it 40 feet tall so that people could walk into and around it," she sighed.

Two aspects of Mrs. Hackney's career are that she is largely self-taught and started a fulltime career quite late in life. The mother of two children, Mrs. Sarah Young of Novato and Christopher Hackney of Sonoma, she has four grandchildren.

"I have loved to draw since I was 8 years old," she said, "but my family fought me like crazy when I wanted to be an artist. I went to Glendale Junior College for a year, but hated it because I wanted to go to art school.

"Then I got married and got into the super mother thing. I didn't want to leave my children with baby sitters and so deferred my art training until they were in school.

"Later I attended the Minneapolis Art Institute for a couple of years, majoring in oil painting and anatomical drawing, but I was allergic to the oils. Acrylics are marvelous for me now," she added, for the artist is skilled in many media besides the stained glass.

Later, in Los Angeles, Rosalis worked in the visual aid department at El Camino College with the idea of becoming a teacher.

"I began to realize that at 10 units per semester it could take me years to get a degree," she declared, "and I decided it was more important to get to work."

ON COMING to Marin in 1957, Rosalis began taking classes at the College of Marin under Harry Crotty. "The classes included all crafts you can think of," she said "and people could decide on what they wanted to do — enameling, jewelry making, mosaics, silk screening, block printing and metal work."

Still into the "super mother thing," Rosalis said she took night classes and began teaching classes.

"I would go home around nine o'clock and often spent the whole night studying so that I could teach the classes the next day. Most of this work was self-taught. Harry Crotty told me I could do it —so I did.

"It was a real trial and error thing, and books helped. A person with talent can do it, I think. Training speeds things up, but you can learn by yourself."

Rosalis taught these classes at the College of Marin and its extension program at Bolinas five years, gaining many of the skills she eventually used in later and present work.

About 10 years ago she became interested in stained glass through working part time making samples for Creative Merchandisers, Inc., in San Rafael. About this time it became necessary for her to become fully self-supporting, and she opened a studio in a home in Mill Valley.

"I tried to get builders interested in architectural and sculptural use of glass," she said, "but they weren't interested. It took me three years to get architects interested in glass. They would say, 'That's old church stuff — nobody is doing that. We can get all we need from Europe.'

"Then one day someone asked me if I could repair a Tiffany lamp, and the next thing I knew I had three more jobs to repair and even made a lamp. Here was a way to use color without getting sick from paint."

It was a case of finding a need and filling it, and soon Rosalis was busy with orders doing restoration for many collectors and churches and creating new things designed and handmade of stained glass.

IN 1967 Rosalis moved to her present studio in the Industrial Building in Sausalito, where she works on many commissions, including those for collage murals, three dimensional and leaded glass windows and doors as well as functional designs for lighting fixtures, sunken baths, swimming pools and fireplace murals. She recently completed a large fabric collage wall hanging for the Student Union of the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco.

She has juried and hung numerous shows of sculpture and painting and crafts and exhibited in various galleries, including the San Francisco Museum of Art and De Young Museum.

It has not been easy for the artist in the stained glass field, where women are rare. She admits to having several experiences "that flattened me out. They don't like it when they ask for the boss and find it is a woman," she said.

As for the future, Rosalis has bigger things in mind. "I would just as soon design only and let someone else do the work," she said.

"I'm an experimentalist. What I'd really love to do is be a part of a community of artists living and working together, where children could be educated as total human beings, including the arts, of course, but not just the arts — I think I would call it education in the science of living."

ROSALIS HACKNEY, whose work in stained glass will be among displays by 52 women artist at this weekend's Sausalito Arts Festival, shows a model of her latest commission for a piece of stained glass sculpture which will stand in the center of a fountain. It will be nine feet tall, though she would have liked to make it 40 feet so that people could walk into and around it. (Independent-Journal photo)

Volunteer Returns After Mishap To Aid 'Russian Extravaganza'

By JOAN LISETOR

The Marin Symphony Association has called upon Mrs. Aleksei M. Zaitzeff of Tiburon for help for the second time in recent months.

In the fall, as the association held its fund-raising auction, Dunya Chernenko Zaitzeff was collecting items to be auctioned when she fell, pulling ligaments in her ankle.

Back on her feet, she has valiantly returned as a volunteer and is working under the same chairman, Mrs. Audrey Jarach of San Rafael. The Russian-born Mrs. Zaitzeff is a consultant to the committee planning "Russian Extravaganza; an outdoor party and concert Sunday afternoon at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

As a consultant to Betty Mitchell, decorations chairman of the extravaganza, Mrs. Zaitzeff has lent both her expertise and the many books she has on Russian motif.

BORN IN Kiev, Mrs. Zaitzeff left Russia as a child in 1918.

"We left the day after the czar's mother," she said, "and wandered in Europe before settling in Italy for three or four years."

Her family came to the U.S. east coast in 1924, and she was reared in Boston and New York. Rather than childhood memories of her native country, Mrs. Zaitzeff relies on memories of her upbringing and teachings of Russian culture for the authenticity on Russian atmosphere.

"I was brought up to believe we were going back after the Communists left, and I was prepared for that day by being taught the Russian language and culture," she said.

Mrs. Zaitzeff is also lending pieces from her priceless collection of Russian artifacts for a display at the center Sunday. The collection includes jewelry and silver that has been in her family and artifacts from her husband's family. The display will include a medal given by Catherine the Great to Orloff when she sent him to Moscow to keep the people from panicking during an outbreak of the plague; a coin from the time of Ivan the Terrible; a pewter annointing spoon with figures of the czar and czarina, and some very old icons.

THE RUSSIAN theme was decided long before it was known that President Nixon would be in Russia this week, Audrey Jarach said, but the coincidence has generated interest in the event, especially in the Russian communities of the Bay Area.

In addtiion to the decorations and display, the theme will be carried out with strolling Russian gypsy musicians and the serving of pirouschki, a Russian meat-filled pastry.

Guest artist for the concert, which will begin at 4:30 p.m., an hour after the gates open for the party, is pianist Sheldon Shkolnik, who also has a Russian background.

Although she has traveled extensively Mrs. Zaitzeff has never been back to Russia. She has lived in the Bay Area for about 20 years, first in Mill Valley. She was put in charge of the Mill Valley summer recreation program after criticizing it when she first arrived there in the early 1950s. From 1954 until 1966 she had a real estate office in Mill Valley. She has been an active volunteer throughout her life with the USO in Washington, D.C., and working in settlement houses in New York City. She also has served the Junior Theater of Marin, was involved in the early days of the Boyd Museum of Science and is a guarantor of the San Francisco Opera.

She described a moment of nostalgia when, on a trip to Alaska, she stood on a point of St. Lawrence Island, 50 miles from Russia:

"I could see the lights, and suddenly had the most overwhelming desire to go back. If there had been a boat at that moment I would have taken it."

Another return was thwarted because of a cholera outbreak in her native country two years ago, and she is allergic to the serum given as an immunization for cholera.

By HELEN BOTTEL

If It Happens In This Town, It Probably Happens Elsewhere

DEAR HELEN:

If this happens in our medium-sized town, it probably happens elsewhere.

Admitting the seriousness of our illegal drug problem, and being a contributing member of the establishment, I am still sickened by the conduct of our school officials in their policing of students.

Our city vice department is very active and receives good publicity. When they make a raid, newspaper pictures of the suspects appear. The very next day, the high school authorities call in students, one at a time, who have a general appearance (long hair, etc.) similar to the published suspects and bystanders. They are grilled and cross-examined in the grossest of backroom interrogation proceedings. Often this comes as a total surprise, as the young people had been nowhere near the scene of the crime.

You may think authorities don't hire teen-age "narcs," but an older student was convicted on a 10-year felony because one of those "non-existent" narcs handed him $2 in marked money saying, "This is what I owe you for the stuff." An assistant principal swears he "observed the sale."

Of course, personal and racial factors entered into the arrest, but I can assure you the boy is not guilty.

Even if this lessened drug traffic on campus, which it doesn't, is it right? — APPALLED

DEAR APPALLED:

As you state it: No. But I'd have to hear both sides and do considerable investigation before I could make a judgment.

For starters: How could a student be convicted on a felony charge if the only evidence was money, not dope? — H.

DEAR MRS. BOTTEL:

You are a disgrace to the word "parent." Teen-agers are distrubed enough without you making them more hostile, rebellious, indifferent and disrespectful with your "advice" that "parents aren't always right just because they are parents."

You say "talk it over" with them, which means argue and rebel. Obedience is what you should push. We are right. We will not have backtalk, and we don't appreciate monsters like you inspiring it.

In our family, we insist on togetherness, discipline, morals, loyalty, respect, 'honor thy father and mother" and we think you are a menace to family unity. My husband agrees. Naturally, my children don't.

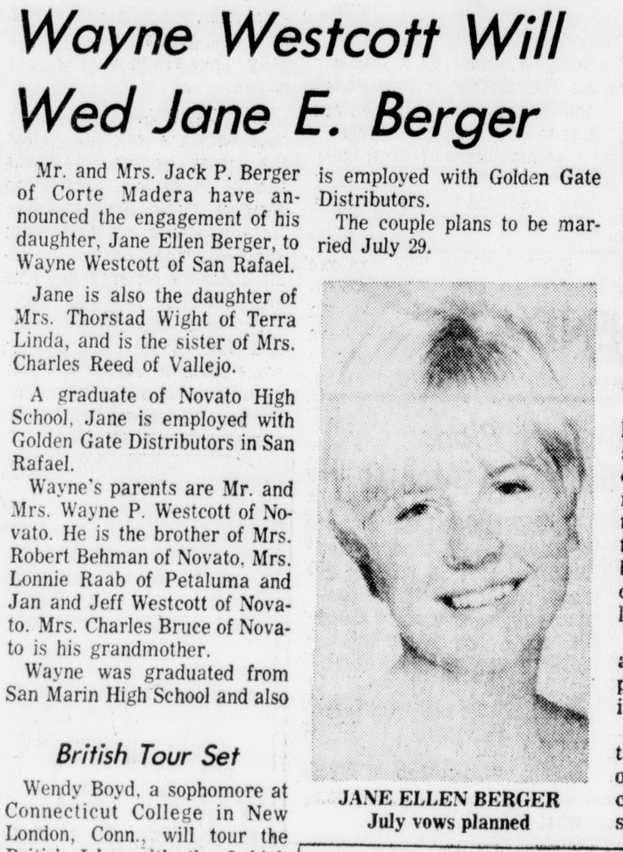

You also seem to oppose older parents living with their married children. Why not? They lived with us for 18 years.

Another thing: you allow letters about zero population growth (a national suicide policy) in your so-called column. You mention planned parenthood organizations (our tax dollars going to help promote immorality), birth control, vasectomies, even abortions and you don't call them instruments of the devil — for married as well as single people. You even recommend "tolerance and understanding" for homosexuals, drug addicts, VD carriers and other criminals.

What the world needs is less "broad-minded" fools and more parents who are — FOLLOWERS OF THE TEN COMMANDMENTS

DEAR FOLLOWERS:

I stand by my words: "Parents aren't always right, just because they are parents." Your letter is Exhibit A for the defense. — H.

New Job Handbook Outlines Prospects

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — For people considering the choice of a career or a new job, a new government booklet has some timely advice.

It is called the "Occupational Outlook Handbook" and is published by the Labor Department on the basis of reports received from experts in all parts of the country.

It groups jobs in various broad categories, then breaks down individual occupations within those categories. It gives estimates of the number of people employed in each job in 1970 and the average annual openings expected by 1980 because of increased needs for such skills.

It also contains comments on the general outlook for each job. For example, it says opportunities for accountants are excellent. It adds that there will be a "strong demand for college trained applicants. Graduates of business and other schools offering accounting should have good prospects."

According to the booklet, the largest number of openings will be for stenographers and secretaries. A total of 247,000 annual openings are expected by 1980.

Next largest number of openings is for retail sales clerks, with some 131,000 expected yearly by 1980. Not far behind are hospital attendants, with 111,000 opportunities anticipated.

NEXT IN order come bookkeeping workers, 74,000; building custodians, 70,000; registered nurses, 69,000; waiters and waitresses, 67,000; cashiers, 64,000; typists, 61,000 and licensed practical nurses, 58,000.

In terms of plain numbers, therefore, the best opportunities lie in offices, hospitals, stores and restaurants.

Some of the best paying jobs, however, have comparatively small numbers of openings. For example, the yearly need for new dentists by 1980 is estimatee at 5,400. But the opportunities are called "very good" because the limited capacity of dental schools will keep income levels rising.

Much the same story is told about prospects for doctors, pharmacists and other specialized health service occupations.

In some categories, however, the booklet appears to be too optimistic based on present conditions. It may be correct in saying, for example, that the prospect for computer operators will be very rapid employment growth, but openings have dried up substantially in recent periods.

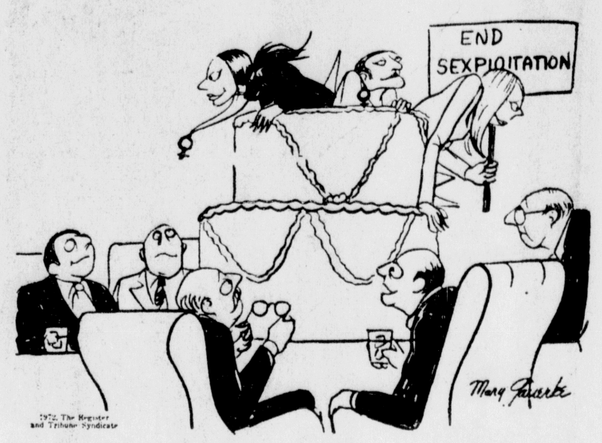

ONLY A few weeks ago, the Federal Trade Commission issued complaints against several computer schools, charging them with advertising falsely that there is very heavy demand for such skills. Those with professional training will have better chances.

Another area which may not be accurately predicted by the book involves environmental careers. It indicates little growth in such jobs. But a recent book by Odom Fanning, a Commerce Department official, predicts a doubling of jobs in environmental management by the end of the decade.

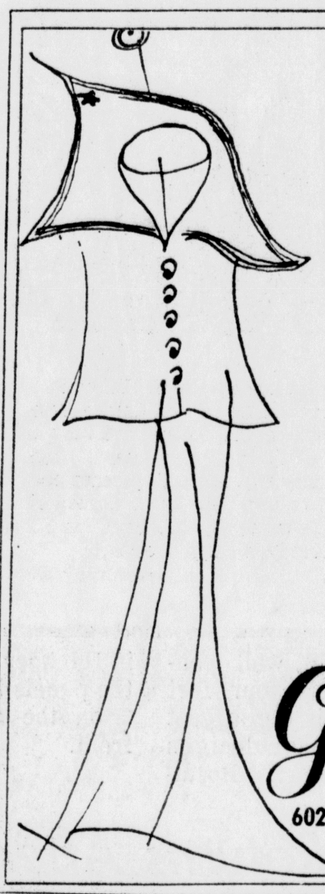

His book, "Opportunities in Environmental Careers," is published by Vocational Guidance Manuals, 235 East 45th St., New York, N. Y. 10017. It is part of a series of books on career opportunities. It costs $5.75.

The Labor Department book may be purchased for $6.25 from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402. (Ask for Bureau of Labor Statistics Bulletin 1700). It is also available from Labor Department regional offices.

SEATTLE

The YWCA Fights Sex Tradition

SEATTLE (UPI)—Two years ago the University of Washington YWCA moved out of the landscaped brick building it shared with the University YMCA in the fraternity and sorority house area near the university and set up shop in a second-story office suite in the heart of the University District business area.

"It was traditional male-female relationship before; just what we're fighting against," said Ann Schwiesow, dynamic executive director of the University YWCA.

"We knew from the beginning we would be concerned first and foremost with women's liberation but we don't really plan things around here," she said.

"WHAT HAPPENS here is really organic—in response to a need. Things start here and move out on their own when they are able."

Complete Womens' Services

Currently the University YWCA houses such things as an abortion referral program, a women's clinic, complete with a doctor and nurses. It provides office space for "Pandora," a bi-weekly feminist newsletter, and operates a telephone answering service for a women's divorce cooperative that helps women obtain divorces without the expense of hiring an attorney.

The abortion referral service at the "Y" had its beginning in 1970 when a group actively backing an abortion law reform referendum was ordered off campus and took up quarters at the YWCA, Ms. Schwiesow said.

After the referendum passed, the University YWCA eventually became home for about 50 volunteers who work a few hours a week to provide the names of doctors performing abortions, give birth control advice and counsel those considering abortions. The service extends to providing rides, child care and companionship for women undergoing abortions.

Last year the abortion referral service had 7,000 calls and handled about 5,000 referrals, channeling women to doctors who will perform the operation for as little as $50.

"A lot of doctors won't do abortions, even though they're legal, and some of those who will are really taking advantage of women," Ms. Schwiesow said.

THE MOST ambitious program is the women's clinic being operated from the University YWCA's offices, providing preventive services which include pregnancy detection, general physical examinations, counseling, venereal disease detection and treatment and birth control assistance.

The clinic, whose first-year operation is to be funded by a $50,000 Department of Health, Education and Welfare grant, features women doctors, nurses and assistants.

The rooms used for the clinic were designed, tiled, painted and paneled by women volunteers. Females also did all of the furniture construction, architectural design and much of the plumbing.

Also operating from the University YWCA is a women's co-op garage where females learn to repair and maintain their own cars.

"Things here are not necessarily planned or scheduled," Ms. Schwiesow said. "It's an environment where women are free to act, react and explore.

"Women can do what they want here. There are no rules and they don't have to be a lady."

SUCH ACTIVITIES are not conducted without some repercussions. Ms. Schwiesow said some past funding sources have dried up. "A small group is withdrawing its support because they can't agree with what we are doing," she said.

The Seattle-King County YWCA, which is an entirely separate group, also feels some of the heat from the university group's programs, according to its executive director, Dorothy Miller.

Ms. Schiewsow said the national YWCA organization is supportive of some of what is being done at her branch. "They have a liberal-to-radical stand that calls for an end to discrimination," she said.

"But we're probably the only 'Y' in the whole country doing what we're doing."

National P-TA In Support Of Busing

I-J Special Report

NEW YORK — The National Parent-Teacher Association voted Tuesday at its national convention to support school busing to achieve racial integration in schools.

By a close 302 to 296 vote at its meeting in New York, the P-TA passed a resolution to "take immediate action to search for solutions that could by rational means reduce racial isolation through transportation."

The Gucci Family Business One Of The Most Copied In Fashion

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Gucci Family of Italy has been in the leather business for 500 years, creating the most copied designs in the world, especially men's shoes where the original gold harness bit on a moccasin turned into a nationwide craze in this country in brass.

The Guccis are a close knit family and so is their business, and they recently signed an agreement in Florence to keep it that way at least until the year 2075 A.D., with the business and its secrets descending from father to son "to maintain our exclusivity."

Dr. Aldo Gucci, who has two brothers in the business and three sons and 10 grandchilren, is perhaps the most traveled of the family, making what he called "34 back and forths" across the Atlantic last year alone to open new shops or put on fashion shows.

There are Gucci handbags for men and women, accessories, baggage, shoes, jewelry, most of them expensive and a lot of them status symbols marked either by a harness bit or a surcingle, which is the canvas band that goes around a horse's belly. They are in miniature, of course.

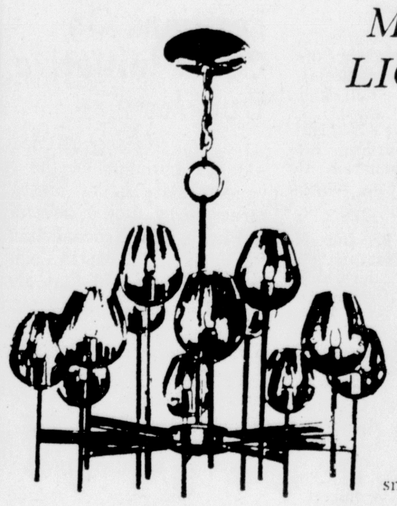

THE ORIGINAL Gucci men's shoe with the gold bit across the instep became a status symbol in its own right, then designer Paolo Gucci, one of Dr. Aldo's sons, placed a green and red striped canvas surcingle under the bit and it became even more so.

The shoe business was strictly a post war development and came more or less by accident. A workman in a Florence factory had his shoemaker father make up a couple of sample women's shoes with the same hardware used on other items, and after a family conference the Guccis were in the shoe business.

"The idea caresses me very much," Gucci said he told the shoemaker's son. "Go ahead and make me three pairs." So I took them to Rome and showed how they matched the bags and I must confess the reaction was very favorable. We did not explode, however. We contained the idea for some time."

Two years later he started making men's shoes although "at first I thought the idea was a bit too much." There were a lot of problems, such as not enough workers for the hand stitching required, so the family set up schools which attracted artisans because there was a lot of other education included.

Changes 'Could Save $1 Million'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Joint Legislative Audit Committee says the state could save more than $1 million a year with changes in the administration and collection of inheritance tax.

The committee recommended the changes Wednesday in a report submitted to the legislature.

The panel called for transferring the inheritance tax collection duties of the counties to the state controller's office. It said such action would save $785,000 through cost reductions and additional interest earned on taxes collected.

The committee said that to retain the level of revenue from inheritance tax, a fee should be charged against the state for appraisal by civil service appraisers.

MOTION PICTURE GUIDE

The Marin Motion Picture and Television Council provides these ratings of movies now being shown in Marin County. The council's findings are from California and National Parent-Teacher Assn. Magazines and Parents' Magazine unless otherwise noted. More complete reviews may be obtained by calling the San Rafael City Library.

FAMILY

"Biscuit Eater" — A rural period piece, set in the lush Tennessee hills in 1946 is about a black boy and a white boy who train a misfit dog that leads to a father-son competition in the championship finals. Excellent entertainment.

"Black Beauty" — Anna Sewell's classic is recreated telling the story of the birth of a colt and his series of dramatic adventures as he is passed from one owner to another. Beautifully produced but some violence and brutality explicitly shown and might be distressing to very young children.

"Silent Running" — Space drama of the future is about a botanist who has spent 8 years aboard a space freighter with the only botanical specimens left from earth where all vegetation has died. He has some assistants and 3 knee high robots. Technical effects are fascinating.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Andromeda Strain" — In a fantastic underground laboratory a team of scientists are racing against time in trying to identify a fatal disease transported to earth by a space probe satellite. Suspenseful.

"Frogs" — Nature suddenly turns against mankind and frogs, snakes and lizards get revenge on the evil humans who try to poison them. Well made horror film.

"Horseman" — Spectacular adventure film set in Afghanistan is about a young man's efforts to live up to the reputation established by his father as the finest horseman in the country.

"Organization" — Lt. Virgil Tibbs of the San Francisco homicide division is suspended when he becomes involved with a group of young people who have taken the law into their own hands. Tense, violent melodrama.

"Patton" — Well made film with brilliant characterization by George C. Scott creating a monumental portrait. Strong dialogue is shocking in its realism.

"They Might Be Giants" — A chaotic tragic-comic fantasy about a former judge turned paranoic and believes he is Sherlock Holmes. His psychiatrist, Dr. Mildred Watson, instead of curing him, joins him in his search for Prof. Moriarty.

"ZPG" — Life in the future technological society when because of overpopulation child bearing has been declared high treason. Naturally — a rebel couple decide to have their own baby regardless of the risk. Suspenseful.

BORDERLINE

"Cabaret" — Decadently manic mood of pre-Nazi Germany is captured in this adaptation of the racy Broadway musical. A kinky English girl delights in shocking the people with her behavior as a cabaret singer and in her private life. Sophisticated and bawdy, sex and foul language.

"French Connection" — An exciting suspense thriller about two relentless narcotics detectives trying to crack an international heroin smuggling ring. Much violence and bloodshed.

"J. W. Coop" — Film is an intensely personal statement by Cliff Robertson who wrote, produced, directed and starred in this low key story of contemporary life in a rodeo circuit. Some cursing, nudity and sex. (Boxoffice Magazine)

"Play It Again Sam" — In this sex comedy Woody Allen is a dedicated movie buff and as a writer lives in a fantasy world where he gets advice from his favorite actor, Humphrey Bogart on how to solve his sex problems.

"Summer of '42" — Three 15-year-old boys wander through an island beach summer, obsessed with sex and its mysteries.

"Vanishing Point" — An ex-race car driver in "doing his thing" drives from Denver to San Francisco in 15 hours regardless of what stands in his way. A pointless story filled with sex, nudity, violence and cursing accentuated by hard, driving music.

ADULTS ONLY

"Godfather" — Gripping epic gangster film filled with excessive violence. The head of Mafia family leads two lives, as a kindly head of a family and then as leader of a mob whose business is killing.

"Hospital" — An aging doctor who postpones his suicide in order to investigate the mysterious deaths of two interns and a nurse. Scathing episodes are sometimes humorously presented. Strong language, sex, excellent cast and acting.

"Klute" — Psychological murder mystery with a sordid background, the brutally realistic picture of the life of a call girl. Strong language, sex and nudity.

"The Last Picture Show" — The moral degeneration of a small Texas town is graphically shown through the eyes of an 18 year old boy. The pattern of life seems to evolve around nudity, sex and cursing, all explicitly shown.

"M.A.S.H" — Nothing escapes the mockery of this ribald blood soaked comedy of wartime Korea. Sex, nudity, cursing are part of everyday life in this satire of the Mobile Army Surgical Hospital.

"Possession of Joel Delaney" — The younger brother of a New York divorcee in rebellion against her possessiveness turns to the occult arts as practiced by a Puerto Rican sub-culture. The boys diabolic possession by a spirit of a dead Puerto Rican youth leads to several brutal murders of young women. Violence and nudity. (Catholic Film Newsletter)

"Rosemary's Baby" — Suspenseful tale of modern witchcraft. A young bride is marked by diabolically evil witches, who are disciples of satan, to conceive and bear satan's baby. Birth scenes, nudity and language are brutally frank and explicit.

Petitions On Coast Initiative Due June 5

Petitions to place the Coastal Alliance Initiative on the November state ballot must be turned in by June 5, according to Phyllis Faber, cochairman of the campaign in Marin County.

Mrs. Faber said that about two-thirds of the 12,000 signature goal for the county has been reached.

Petitions may be turned in either to her at 212 Del Casa, Mill Valley, or the other cochairman, Benjamin Webb, 445 Woodland Road, Kentfield.

Statute Hit On Law Practice

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A statute requiring persons to be U.S. citizens to practice law in California was struck down as unconstitutional Wednesday by the State Supreme Court.

In a 6-0 decision, the court acted in favor of a petition by Paolo Raffaelli, 36, a native of Italy who entered the United States in 1959. He is married to an American woman and has status of a permanent resident alien.

The court, in its ruling, said the statute requiring citizenship for admission to the state bar violated the Equal Protection clauses of the United States and California constitutions.

Bay Area Council Seats New Leader

Angelo J. Siracusa of Foster City was mistakenly identified in a headline in yesterday's Independent-Journal as a new Boy Scout chief for the Bay Area.

Siracusa actually was named executive director of the San Francisco Bay Area Council, a business group aimed at civic, economic and environmental development in the Bay Area.

Alert Resident Leads To Arrest

Sheriff's deputies have arrested a 29-year-old Woodacre man on suspicion of burglary and possessing stolen property after the victimized resident did most of the leg work.

Deputies said they arrested James Mike Booth at his home Wednesday after William Wright of Linares Avenue in Forest Knolls noticed his Persian rug in the back of a truck and followed it to Booth's house.

The burglary first was reported at 2:43 p.m. and three hours later Wright saw the rug, valued at $200, inuide the truck at the Forest Knolls Lodge and followed it to its destination.

He then called deputies who recovered the rug, a stereo and a saw, then booked Booth into Marin County Jail. He posted $1,000 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

FREEDOM SHOUT

Woman Cries Out At Bolshoi Ballet

MOSCOW (UPI)—It was Pat Nixon's evening out and it was perfect, until the piercing voice made it seem not unlike home.

"Freee-dommm to Viet-nammmmm!" came the heavily accented cry.

It was a beautiful young redhaired woman sitting in a high golden balcony at the Bolshoi Theater Thursday night. She yelled down and to her right at the gilded royal box where President and Mrs. Nixon, Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and Mrs. Leonid I. Brezhnev were settling in for the third dreamy act of "Swan Lake."

The audience gasped. The dimming houselights flared a bit in the gold and red-plush theater, then darkened.

The shadowy figures of Soviet security police moved through the balconies toward the source of the shout.

The Soviets tolerate no such behavior, ever. The beam of a portable spotlight stabbed through the darkness up around the roof.

"I feel sorry for her," muttered a U.S. Secret Service agent in the audience.

It was dark again in the theater by now and ballerina Natasha Besmertnova was gliding through Swan Lake's climax. Guests seated nearby said the police lifted the woman and her female companion right over the backs of their crossaisle seats, so as not to disturb others in their row, and took them away.

Later, the redhaired woman was seen talking to a Soviet security man in the theater lobby, outside the office where she and her friend had been taken. It was plain she was proud of her demonstration.

A real beauty—slender, curvaceous and chic in beige bellbottom trousers and a chocolate jacket, with creamy skin and rich red hair—she looked the policeman in the eye coldly and appeared to be replying with cool disdain to his comments. They returned inside the office, and later it was reported both women were released.

A few minutes after the policeman and the woman disappeared, the Nixons came down through the lobby commenting happily on the performance of Swan Lake, Mrs. Nixon's favorite. They gave no sign they had been ruffled by the incident.

The theater evening—her first night out in Moscow with the President this trip—capped a day in which Mrs. Nixon visited the Bolshoi Choreography School and viewed fashions at a special show.

Imports Exceed Exports Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The United States suffered its second worst monthly trade deficit in history in April as the value of imports outran exports by almost $700 million, the Commerce Department said today.

The nation has now imported more than it exported in 12 of the past 13 months and the trend has accelerated since the first of this year. For the first foar months of 1972, the trade balance plunged $2.2 billion in the red.

The trade gap has been the bleakest part of the nation's economic picture, contributing to the dollar drain overseas and cutting into the domestic sales of U.S. firms.

$200 Million Profit For The Airlines

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The airline industry made a $29 million profit in 1971, compared with a $200 million loss the year before, according to the Air Transport Association.

The association said rising traffic figures and cost-cutting operations contributed to an "immeasurably improved" financial picture. It added, however, that $27 million of the 1971 profit was caused by government refunds of money the airlines had committed to the now defunct supersonic transport (SST).

Bolinger Son Pleads Innocent

The 18-year-old son of Marin General Hospital's administrator pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to three misdemeanor counts stemming form his arrest by the California Highway Patrol in the morning.

A pretrial conference was set for June 12 for Raymond K. Bolinger Jr., who lives with his parents in San Rafael. The Bolingers sat quietly behind their son as he entered his plea.

The high school student was halted at 2:10 a.m. on Highway 37 because his car was swerving on and off the road, according to the highway patrol.

He was being handcuffed after failing a roadside sobriety test when he tried to discard a red box from his pocket. The box contained suspected hashish and a pipe was found in his pocket.

He was then charged with drunken driving, possession of hashish and drug accessories.

He was released without bail after the court appearance.

Innocent Plea In Coins Theft

Robert Michael Linsley, 35, of San Jose pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to two counts of armed robbery filed after his fingerprints were found on a comic book left behind by the robbers of a Strawberry coin store.

A jury trial was set for the week of July 3.

Linsley was arrested on a warrant May 2 charging he was one of the men who held up the Golden Gate Coin Store in the Town and Country Village for $5,000 to $7,000 in rare coins Feb. 24.

The bandits, armed with revolvers, subdued a sheriff's deputy as well as the store owner before fleeing.

Variety Of Events For Weekend

Country Fair, Festival By Greeks, Art Show

From a country fair in Novato to a Grecian festival at the Civic Center, the sights and sounds of varied cultures will be offered this Memorial Day weekend in Marin.

Three main events are on the calendar of activities: Novato's Western Country Fair and the Marin Grecian Festival at the Civic Center, both through Sunday, and Sausalito's first May festival, through Monday. (photo, page 6)

The annual Novato fair, which opened last night, features rides and booths, a parade, western entertainment, a tug-of-war, races and a horseshoe tournament. Except for a 10:30 a.m. parade starting at Grant Avenue and a pancake breakfast starting at 7 a.m. at the Downtown Shopping Center, both tomorrow, all events are scheduled at the fairgrounds at the end of Rowland Boulevard.

The Grecian festival, a fund-raising event of the Greek Orthodox Church of Marin, is being held for the first time. Entertainment — dancing, films and crafts —will begin at 11 a.m. tomorrow and Sunday. The last event is set for 7 p.m.

Some of the highlights of the show will be a Greek puppet show, with performances at 11 a.m., 1 p.m. and 3 p.m.; a duo known as Ulysses and Useless, performers who pick up tables with their teeth, among other things; a production of "Zorba the Greek" by the Shorter Players, at 2, 4:30 and 5:30 p.m. inside the Veterans Memorial Building, and films on subjects such as Grecian ruins, yachting in Greece and festivals of the country.

Admission to the festival, benefiting the church building fund, will be $2 for adults and $1 for persons 12-16 years old, with youngsters under 12 free. Inside the grounds, all entertainment —except for 75-cent admission to "Zorba" —will be free, as will parking.

For youngsters, carnival rides will be offered both days of the festival, as well as Monday during clean-up operations.

In Sausalito, more than 200 artists and craftsmen will show works and demonstrate techniques at Central School playground on Caledonia Street from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., starting tomorrow. Dancers, musicians and poets also are on the fare.

Performers will include San Francisco street musicians, the Berkeley Free Orchestra, Kiriaki Greek Dancers, Bert Balladine's belly dancers and flamenco dancers Robin and Mark Levin. Puppeteer Mary Will Winn also will perform.

Religious stained glass windows made in England in the 1840s and a model city built by students of North Bay School, Sausalito, will be among featured art works.

The event is sponsored by the Sausalito Arts Association and Art Center. Parking will be available on Bridgeway between Napa and Litho streets. Buses will link the transbay ferry.

Airplane rides, meanwhile, will be the chief attraction Monday when the Marin County Diabetes Association holds a Pennies-a-Pound Air Fair at Gnoss Field, north of Novato. The event is to be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

While there will be no admission charge, airplane rides will cost persons two cents per pound.

Antique planes from the American Air Museum and an old Ford Tri-Motor will be on display.

The event, at which Playboy bunnies will be guests, is being conducted in cooperation with Spectrum Air.

Also Monday, veteran groups will conduct Memorial Day exercises at 11 a.m. at the Marin Veterans Memorial building.

Bambi Anderson Crowned Queen Of Country Fair

Miss Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Anderson, 680 McClay Road, will reign over the fair, which runs through Sunday, and the Novato Horsemen's rodeo June 18.

Chosen as princesses were Lois Jones, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Jones, 607 McClay Road, and Jean Robb, daughter of Thea Robb of San Rafael.

More than 200 persons packed the Novato Community House for fair opening ceremonies that included coronation of the queen. Other events were a melodrama by the Novato Community Players and singing by the Novato High School Vocal Methods group.

Meanwhile, at the fairgrounds, from 1,000 to 1,500 persons showed up on opening night for carnival rides and food and game booths. The fairgrounds is located at the east end of Rowland Boulevard.

The fair's main event, a community parade, will start at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow with television actor Guy Stockwell as parade marshal. Actor John Forsythe will ride in the parade.

Five bands, antique cars and floats will be among the 70 entries in the parade along Grant Avenue from Eighth Street to First Street.

The annual buckaroo breakfast will be served by the Mariner Club of the Novato Presbyterian Church from 7 to 11 a.m. tomorrow at the Novato Downtown Shopping Center, Seventh Street and Grant Avenue.

Sewer Work Planned On Hetherton

Continued work next week on the sewer reconstruction project in San Rafael will cause traffic disruptions for a time in the area east of Hetherton Street, according to Eli Caillouette Jr., city engineer.

Caillouette said that work will start on Third Street at Hetherton and progress easterly on Third to Mary Street. Third Street will be closed to through traffic during the construction.

During this period westbound traffic on Third will be detoured to Fourth Street and Fourth will become one-way westbound from Union Street to Hetherton.

At the same time, the Golden Gate Transit District bus stop under the viaduct on Fourth Street will be moved to Fifth Avenue. This relocation is scheduled for midnight Tuesday, Caillouette said.

He also said that it is not possible to predict the exact days streets will be closed because of the contractor's schedule and delays he might encounter.

Students Elected To New College Panel

Although they ran unopposed, more students (524) voted to ratify their membership on the board than have voted since April 1970, according to Gregory C. Fearon, former president of the student body.

The seven are Susanna Andrews, Waldo Bascom, Mark Conlan, Jeff Dondero, William Essertier, Daniel McCarty and John Ryan.

Because there was no opposition, no count was made of how many students voted for individual board candidates. During a board meeting yesterday Bascom asked that such a count be made.

At a later date the board will choose a president and secretary from among its seven members.

The board replaces a 14-member executive council first organized in the 1920s, shortly after the college was founded. The new structure is designed to be more functional and encourage more student participation in campus government.

College Cabinet Overrides Teacher Selection Bar

The College of Marin Cabinet yesterday overrode a faculty referendum and approved including students in teacher selection.

In a referendum ending May 10, the college faculty rejected, better than three to one, a proposed college policy to allow students voting representation during faculty selection.

Administrators, students and counselors combined to pass the measure 8-3, the teache representatives dissenting. Voting for the proposal were Irwin P. Diamond, dean of the college; Berkeley Johnson, dean of instruction; Robert E. Flynn, director of student activities; William Peters, counselor; and four students, Peter Menkins, Gregory Fearon, Susanna Andrews and Henry Crutchfield.

The three faculty members opposed to the measure are Robert McVey, mathematics professor and head of the instructional council; Scott Merrick, chairman of the music department and Michael Hansen, engineering professor and chairman of the cabinet.

Choir Will Not Appear At Event

The Village Baptist Choir will not appear at a fund-raising party for Rev. Samuel L. Banks Jr., supervisorial candidate, scheduled for 8 p.m. today at Brown's Hall in Mill Valley.

A spokesman for Banks, candidate in the third district, said the campaign committee had been incorrectly informed the choir would sing. Instead, she said, a group of Marin City singers will perform.

Everts Heads Youth Group

The Mill Valley Youth Commission last night elected John Everts its new chairman.

Other new officers include Kathy Graham, vice chairman and Sally Maes, secretary.

The commission also recommended that the Mill Valley City Council make a full investigation into the closing of the polluted small boat harbor.

Veterinary Unit Plan Approved

Plans for a new veterinary hospital were approved last night by the Cotati Planning Commission.

City Mgr. Paul W. Salfen said the new 5,000-square-foot clinic will be built adjacent to the present Cotati Veterinary Hospital, 8055 Gravenstein Highway, by a group of five veterinarians.

The commission heard that the hospital will treat all types of animals including large farm animals and will be fully equipped with surgery and an intensive care unit. Plans next year call for construction of a recuperation barn.

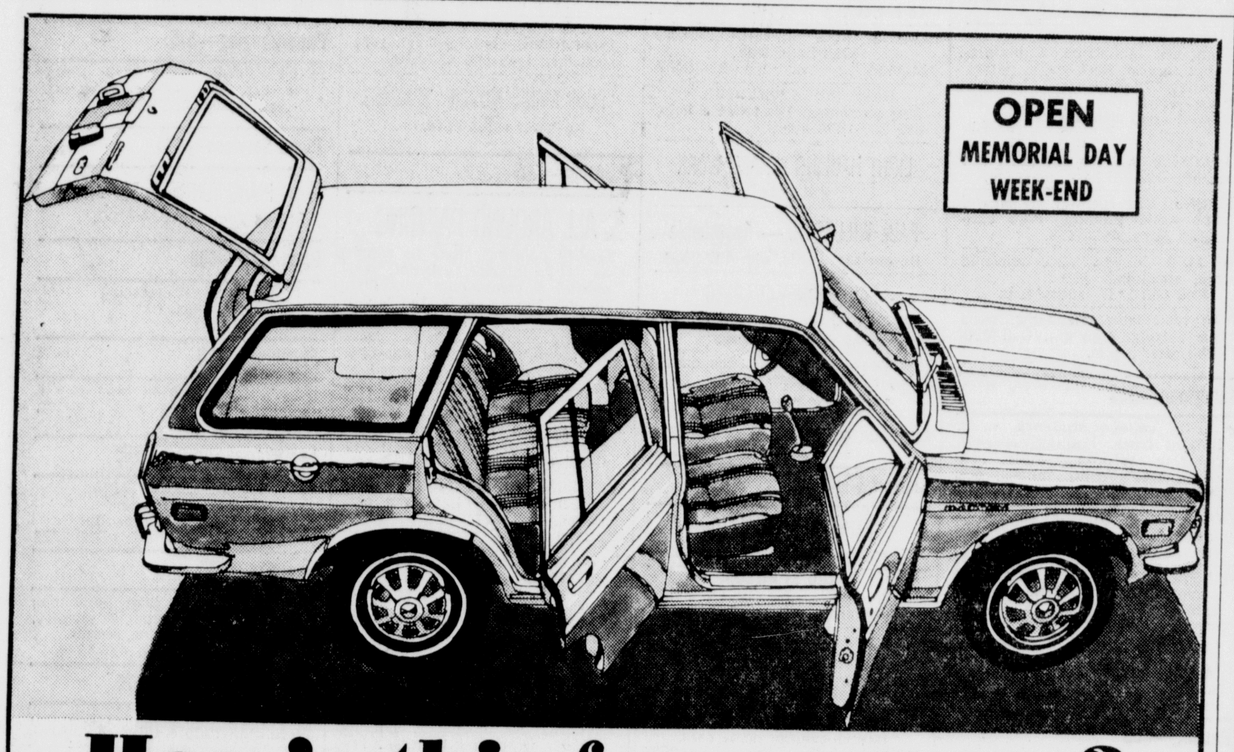

Summer Theater Auditions To Begin

Auditions for Marin Theatrical Productions summer season will be conducted next week from 7 to 11 p.m. Monday; 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Wednesday and 2 to 6 p.m. Friday, in Brown's Hall, Mill Valley.

Actors, dancers, singers and technicians are sought for "The Fantasticks" and for a children's theater program. Performers are asked to prepare one song and bring their own sheet music.

JOAN SEMINARIO
Seeks election

PETER A. RIBAR
Incumbent

2 Incumbents, 2 Challengers Vie For Sanitary Board Seats

Two incumbents on the Ross Valley Sanitary District board are being challenged by a founder of Marin Alternative and the cofounder of a Marin recycling firm in the June 6 election.

About 20,500 registered voters are eligible to go to the polls between 7 a.m. and 8 p.m.

All four candidates live in Kentfield.

Seeking new four-year terms are Board President Peter A. Ribar, an attorney, originally appointed to the board in 1960, and Ray I. Johnson, 54, of 15 South Ridgewood Road, who was appointed to the board in 1967. He is ageneral contractor.

Challengers are Joan Seminario, 34, of 22 Rock Road, and Roger Bockrath, 22, a cofounder of Survival Inc., a recycling operation. He lives at 9 Locust Avenue.

Mrs. Seminario said she became interested in the board when she discoverd what she said were major deficiencies in sewage treatment in the district; that the board does not distribute minutes and agendas of its meetings, and that one incumbent has missed 14 of the last 17 board meetings.

Although Mrs. Seminario did not name any board member, Dist. Mgr. Ralph C. Noah said Johnson had missed 13 of the board's last 17 meetings.

Mrs. Seminario was one of the founders of Marin Alternative, worked on the successful campaign to block the Sonoma-Marin aqueduct and is now working with the Barbara Boxer campaign for supervisor. She also is a member of the environmental quality committee of the City-County Planning Council of Marin and the environmental health division of the Marin County Comprehensive Health Planning Council.

She and her husband, Richard, have three school-age children. They have lived in Kentfield for five years, and in Marin County for eight years.

She attended Los Angeles public schools, El Camino College, Mills College and College of Marin.

Bockrath has said he feels a seat on the board would put him in a position to take immediate steps "to reverse the current human trend toward mass (ecological) suicide" while increasing awareness of the waste disposal problem.

Bockrath was educated in San Rafael public schools, at College of Marin and the Art Center College of Design in Los Angeles.

Bockrath said, "I feel that our environment is being raped and cemented over faster than public concern for the problem is growing."

He is a former photographer with the Independent-Journal, and took prize-winning photographs of the Aug. 7, 1970, Civic Center shoot-out in which Judge Harold J. Haley, two fleeing convicts and an accomplice were killed.

Ribar, a native of Pueblo, Colo., has lived in Kentfield for 22 years and practices law both in San Francisco and Marin County. He is a 1936 graduate of the University of Colorado and received his law degree from George Washington University in Washington, D.C. He is a former Federal Bureau of Investigation agent in Texas and San Francisco.

Ribar could not be reached for comment on campaign issues.

Johnson is president of Ray I. Johnson Inc., a general contracting firm. He has worked as a special agent for the FBI and as a certified public accountant. He is a member of the Kentfield Civic League and the Meadow Club. He has also served as vice president of the North Coast Builders Exchange.

A native of Salt Lake City, he is a graduate of the University of Utah.

Johnson said there were no major issues in the election. "We have to determine the best way of solving our major sewer export question and there just isn't enough information available." He cited his experience as a businessman as helping him to "judge the facts and come up with the most economical solution."

While admitting missing many board meetings recently, Johnson said over his five years on the board he hadn't missed too many.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Jet Age Traveler Good Vehicle For Importing Unusual Diseases

According to our Public Health Service, in 1970, there were 28 instances of imported diseases. The victims included tourists, seamen, students, immigrants, and returning servicemen. The diagnosis often was delayed because the condition was so rare it was not considered, or it was difficult to find laboratories where the tests could be made.

TWO ELDERLY tourists who returned from Central American developed bloody diarrhea. They both had bacillary dysentery (shigellosis). One died. A third shigella importation involved 42 persons aboard a tanker traveling from Japan to our country. Shortly after the ship stopped in Italy, the cook got sick. By the time the tanker reached the States, 42 crew members developed a similar disease.

Eight individuals acquired malaria from blood transfusions. Two cases involved children who had camped in an area near the Mexican border. An induced case of malaria occurred to a serviceman who had never been out of the country. When questioned, he admitted taking heroin intravenously and probably developed malaria via contaminated syringes and needles.

TWO PERSONS on safari in Kenya and Rwanda were bitten by tsetse flies. On arriving home, they developed fever along with pain over the area where they had been bitten. This was followed by severe headache and drowsiness. They had African sleeping sickness, but recovered after appropriate treatment.

Elephantiasis, kala-azar, onchocerciasis, and Lassa virus were also reported. These conditions are unusual in this country and most physicians have never seen a person with these diseases.

Interestingly, most of the infectious imports were parasitic in nature and the majority were brought back from tropical or subtropical climates. Our world is getting smaller and, by jet, most of us are within 24 hours of these areas.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed enveloped accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

ARTHRITIS AND CLIMATE

G. E. writes: Would moving to a warm, dry climate be of any value in arthritis of the hip bone?

REPLY

Yes, because there is less aching in a dry climate. The hip is a weight bearing joint, however, and a change in climate will not alter the irritation from walking. Considerable progress also has been made in the surgical treatment of arthritis of the hip. The entire joint is removed and replaced with a metal or plastic prosthesis.

HOW ABOUT THAT?

F. A. writes: My wife had a fire ball tumor removed. I know it had something to do with her womb, but no one can tell me whether it was a cancer. Do you know?

REPLY

It just occurred to me that the fire ball tumor you mention is a fibroid tumor of the uterus. These are common in women and are removed when they cause bleeding. Fibroids rarely are cancerous.

NASAL PLUMBING

J. D. writes: Something is wrong with my nasal plumbing. The nose drains only on one side during the day. When I go to bed and turn on my right side, it drains on that side and vice versa. What can you suggest?

REPLY

Don't call a plumber. This is the story when mild congestion exists. The nose and throat should be examined thoroughly to determine from where the mucus is coming.

Drugstore Price-List Bill Loses

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A consumer bill requiring pharmacists to post the retail prices of prescription drugs most commonly used in California has been defeated.

The measure by Assemblyman Harvey Johnson, D-El Monte, was rejected Thursday on a 33-34 vote. Johnson kept it technically alive by asking for a reconsideration vote.

Opponents of the bill said it was not necessary because consumers now can shop around if they want to compare drug prices.

Johnson said some pharmacies will charge twice or three times what other pharmacies in the same area will charge for the identical drug.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, called the measure "one of the best consumer bills coming out of this session."

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other Areas:
San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, clean air.

Colorless oxidants, broanish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches, and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Camped Migrant Workers Move

SALINAS (UPI) —After a week of camping along a Salinas street, the evicted farm workers from La Posada Trailer Campg have decided to move to a migrant camp in King City.

They voted Thursday to accept an offer from state authorities to open the King City camp a month early so the 200 evicted members of 30 families could live there until July 1.

The workers were ousted from the trailer camp on May 17 by Salinas police after months of negotiations with federal and state authorities. The original eviction notices were issued last October after Pic 'N Pak Corp., the camp's owner, announced it was going out of the strawberry business.

Too many times we think of Highway Patrol officers as people who have to step in after the wreck.

How much they prefer that you'll take steps so there'll be no wreck!

This Memorial Day Weekend, take control of the car, of your own welfare and that of others. Discover the pleasure of driving within the law, within reason, within safe limits of speed and highway conditions.

CHP officers will be on duty patrolling the highways, keeping traffic moving . . . helping you get where you're going.

Enclosing Stairway Rejected

The Tiburon Board of Design Review has reacted unfavorably to a plan to enclose an open stairway between the Tiburon Vintners and an adjoining office building.

Planning assistant Andrew H. Hahto said the board decided Wednesday that the proposed enclosure — which was designed to create more space for the Vintner's wine tasting room —would not enhance the appearance of either building.

The application will be returned to the city planning commission for formal action.

The board also denied an application from Paul Nathan to construct a three-story stairwell tower alongside a duplex at 1994 Centro West, according to Hahto:

The board determined that the three-story tower exceeded the city's height limitation.

Protest Note On Building Atop Ridge

The Alto-Sutton District Association decided last night to send a letter to the county board of supervisors, protesting additional homebuilding on the Ridge between Corte Madera and Mill Valley, above Scott Valley.

Association members agreed that more construction along the Ridge would increase the danger of flooding below.

The association also elected a new chairman, John McFadden, who will replace John Walter.

Other officers include Virginia Gerhart, vice chairman and treasurer, and Joanna Kiewert, secretary.

The group also announced that its annual picnic —featuring the blue grass music of a group called The River Ferry — will be held in Boyle Park beginning at 12:30 p.m. June 3.

Bomb Blast In College Dorm

There were racial incidents at the dormitory recently.

The bomb, placed between the true ceiling and a layer of acoustical tiles beneath, blew in four doors and shattered a window but damage to the brick building was described as minor.

Lawrence Jackson, 21, a senior asleep in the room closest to the explosion, was hit on the head by a chest of drawers toppled by the blast. Jackson was in satisfactory condition at College Park Hospital.

Corona Ruling Reverse Asked

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The State Supreme Court has been asked by the attorney general to reverse a ruling to transfer the trial of mass murder suspect Juan V. Corona from Yuba City to another site.

In a petition filed late Tuesday, Attorney General Evelle J. Younger argued that the 3rd District Court of Appeal had no basis for ordering the trial moved from rural Sutter County, where the bodies of 25 farm workers were unearthed a year ago.

Younger contended in the petition that pretrial publicity "did not infect Sutter County with hostility toward" Corona.

Four East Bay Nines Pirate Redwood Tourney Thunder

In a bold act of piracy, four teams from the East Bay yesterday hijacked the Redwood High Baseball Tournament of Champions.

Fans wandering down to Albert Park in San Rafael tonight will see Skyline of Oakland playing Ignacio Valley at 7 o'clock and Mt. Eden of Hayward meeting Salesian of Richmond at 9 in semi-final games, the winners of which will collide Saturday night at 8 for the championship.

Fans wishing to see the two local entries, Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park and Redwood of Larkspur, will have to attend the 5 p.m. consolation bracket game. The other consolation game at 3 will pit El Cerriot against Washington of Fremont.

In yesterday's first-round action, witnessed by a crowd tournament officials estimated at 1,500:

Skyline beat El Cerrito, 7-5, on a two-run homer in the sixth inning by Rick Carrothers;

Ygnacio Valley topped Washington, 1-0, on Ron Thompson's one-hit shutout'

Mt. Eden overwhelmed Rancho Cotate, 11-2, scoring eight runs in the seventh inning; and Salesian capitalized on Redwood mistakes for a 3-1 triumph.

"We didn't play a Redwood game," said Giants' coach Al Endriss, who is also the tournament director but found this to be no advantage on the ballfield.

A "Redwood game" involves stellar pitching, tight fielding and timely hitting, none of which the Giants got last night.

Salesian scored in the first inning and never trailed thereafter. Redwood pitcher Gene Frey, who didn't hit a batter all year, plunked leadoff man Jim Thomas on the arm and then wild-pitched him to second. Thomas took third on a fielder's choice and scored when bulky Tony Pasion hit a slow roller to shortstop for a single and moved to second as the shortstop's throw was wild.

In the third, Salesian's Mike Musto belted a Frey fastball off the 380-foot screen in center field on one hop for a triple, and Rick Roach grounded a single up the middle to score him. The Chiefs added another run in the sixth on a single by Roach, two errors on one play by Redwood's double-play combination, and a passed ball.

Redwood's big chance came in the fourth inning, when Mike Connor singled, Bob Brown walked and Jeff Vogel singled to load the bases. Connor scored on an error by the second basemen, but Salesian center fielder Steve Wright made a fine catch coming in on a sinking line drive by Doug Hartman to avert further bloodshed.

Salesian pitcher Jim Stutte struck out three batters, walked two and stranded seven on the basepaths. He will not pitch again in the series due to the Catholic Athletic League's limitation on total innings pitched in a week, Salesian coach Phil Wamlin reported.

Rancho Cotate was alive and not ailing too badly after six innings against Mt. Eden, trailing only 3-2, but the bottom dropped out in the sinister seventh.

Mt. Eden banged eight hits in the frame, drew three walks, stole two bases, and benefitted from a passed ball. The big hit for the Monarchs was a two-run triple by Mark Sill, who had three safeties for the evening.

Mt. Eden pitcher Jim Booe threw a four-hitter and stroked two hits himself, driving in two runs.

Had Mt. Eden built its 11-2 lead earlier, Rancho would have suffered the embarrassment of having the game halted and the victory awarded to the Monarchs. The TOC has a "nine-run rule" which states that if a team is trailing by nine or more runs at the completion of any inning, it is declared the loser without further play.

Ygnacio Valley right-hander Thompson pitched the day's finest game, handcuffing Washing-

Baseball Tournament Draws Budding Stars

By RALPH CHATOIAN

If you see a man sitting in the Albert Field stands at the Redwood Baseball Tournament of Champions taking a pad full of notes, it's a good bet he's a major league scout.

This tournament, started in 1962, by Al Endriss, veteran baseball coach at Redwood High in Larkspur, gives the scouts a chance to see some of the best high school players in the Bay Area at one sitting.

Among the athletes who have played in this San Rafael tournament through the years are three from St. Elizabeth's High of Oakland who went on to major league ball, one of the three in football, not baseball. That's Kevin Hardy, defensive lineman for the San Diego Chargers and former San Francisco 49er. The other two who made it to the "Bigs" from St. Elizabeth's champ teams are Bernie Williams of the Giants and Steve Brye of the Minnesota Twins.

Bill Buckner of the Los Angeles Dodgers is a former tournament player from Napa High and Les Cain of El Cerrito High has gone on to the Detroit Tigers. Ralph Ogden played in the tournament from Lincoln High in San Jose and later played pro basketball with the San Francisco Warriors.

I'm told this year the No. 1 prospect in the tournament is Washington (Fremont) pitcher Dennis Eckersly. He was outpitched in last night's game against Ygnacio Valley, Ron Thompson twirling a one-hitter to win, 1-0. Eckersly gave up six hits.

ANOTHER BIG baseball game coming up is the all-star game between the best seniors of the Marin County Athletic League and the best seniors from Sonoma and North Bay leagues. That game, June 17 at Albert Park, is being sponsored by the Italian Athletic Club of Marin.

Money from that game goes toward a $500 scholarship to a Marin County high schooler involved in sports. The surprising thing is that of the nine Marin County high schools which have been sent application blanks, only four schools have sent in nominations to the Italian Athletic Club. Last year only six of nine schools responded and the year before only seven applications came back.

And if you were wondering, there hasn't been an Italian winner yet. The two previous winners, both from Terra Linda High School, were Mark Jones and Matt Bowman.

COLLEGE OF MARIN football teams of 1961-62-63 are holding a big reunion and banquet next Friday night, June 2, at Nave Lanes in Ignacio. Among the gridders of that Tars' era were Elmer Collett, now a lineman with the 49ers, and Martin Baccaglio, former lineman with the Cincinnati Bengals. For reservations, you footballers should call coach Dick Read at College of Marin.

PAUL LEE, former Terra Linda High baseballer, was one of five members of the University of California Santa Barbara team named to the Pacific Coast Athletic Association all-star team. Lee, batting .344 and his teammates will be taking on powerful University of Southern California this weekend in a three-game series, winner advancing to the college World Series in Omaha, Neb.

SLIDE FOR LIFE — Redwood High School baserunner Dave Payne dove back to first base in the first inning yesterday while Salesian High's Dexter Morrison took a pickoff throw from pitcher Jim Stutte. Salesian won the Redwood High Tournament of Champions contest, 3-1.

Frazier Scores Fifth-Round TKO

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—Smokin' Joe Frazier, his precision job on Bluffs Butcher Ron Stander completed, said today he was waiting for a challenge from the man he calls Cassius Clay.

"I'm taking a long vacation until I get a solid proposal," Frazier said after slicing up the Council Bluffs challenger in four rounds Thursday night and scoring a fifth-round technical knockout when medical and fight officials decided Stander could not start the fifth.

Frazier said he would take on Clay, whom he refuses to call Muhammad Ali, for $3.5 million in a return bout to the March 8, 1971, battle between the two won by Frazier in 15 rounds.

DURHAM

Frazier's manager, Yancey Durham, said he would ask for $4 million for a bout with Ali, but indicated he might accept Frazier's figure.

Lewis ordered the fight stopped because Stander was blinded by blood from the wounds, his right eye was swollen shut, and his nose was broken. The doctor rushed to Stander's corner at the beckoning of referee Zack Clayton.

THE END

He quickly signaled the game challenger could not continue.

HEART

But Stander had heart. He came back for his best round in the fourth, in the opinion of referee Clayton, who paid tribute to the challenger for having "a heart as big as this building."

Frazier took home $150,000 in television money and 40 per cent of the gate. Stander took 20 per cent of the gate and a percentage of the foreign TV money.

All three officials voted the same way, calling the first round even and giving the next three to Frazier.

NBA Edges ABA Stars; Lanier Hot

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI)—It may have been a different story with Kareem AbdulJabbar, Jerry West and Walt Frazier in the game.

The National Basketball Association beat the American Basketball Association 106-104 Thursday night, but many believe the senior circuit would have been charged with harboring a Murder, Inc., lineup had the trio not absented itself from the All-Star game at the Nassau Coliseum.

Last year, the NBA won by five points, again without Abdul-Jabbar. This time Bob Lanier of the Detroit Pistons provided the power as he scored 15 points, grabbed seven rebounds and was named the game's Most Valuable Player.

PRODUCTION

The Who's Who of the NBA were active as John Havlicek of Boston scored 17 points, Archie Clark of Baltimore tallied 15, Cincinnati's Nate Archibald had 12, and Paul Sailas and Connie Hawkins of Phoenix collected 11 and 10 rebounds, respectively.

"We had the experience," grinned Elgin Baylor, retired star of the Los Angeles Lakers making his coaching debut. "But they had us going for a while when we failed to come back fast enough on defense."

LAPSE

During that NBA lapse, the ABA mounted a second period attack that carried the junior league to a 19-point advantage at 49-30. But the trend was reversed immediately as the ABA went cold and the NBA reeled off 15 straight points to trim the lead to four points at 49-45.

MONEY

The Players Associations of both leagues benefited from a $100,000 television package. Half the fee went into their pension fund and the other $50,000 was distributed among the squads, with each winning player getting about $3,500 and losers collected an estimated $1,750 apiece. The gate receipts from a crowd of 14,000 will be distributed among three charities.

ABA Commissioner Jack Dolph was present, signifying his league's sanctioning of the game. NBA Commissioner J. Walter Kennedy has threatened his players with fines for participating in the game.

Karl Leads Atlanta Gold Tourney By One

ATLANTA (UPI) — "Klondike" Karl is in the limelight at the moment but the next three days will tell whether he can stand the heat.

Richard Karl, a 27-year-old Endicott, N.Y., golf pro whose previous claim to fame was the two times (1965-66) he won the Alaska State Amateur, went into today's second round of the Atlanta Classic with a one stroke lead over four tour tested veterans.

Karl, who has finished no higher than his tie for 14th in this year's Phoenix Open in his two years on the Professional Golfers Association tour, shot a 6-under-par 66 in Thursday's opening round. But right on his heels, after shooting 67s, are 1969 Classic winner Bert Yancey, Dave Hill, Bob Lunn and Ken Still.

And with 1970 Classic champ Tommy Aaron, Lou Graham and Kermit Zarley just two strokes back and Homero Blancas and Doug Sanders only three strokes out, Karl is going to need all the cool he can muster to stay out front.

Jack Nicklaus, complaining he "was sloppy with my short irons" after having been off the tour four weeks, headed a group of six 70 shooters and Gary Player, making his first U.S. appearance in seven weeks, was one of 11 golfers at 71 as 27 of 147 starters broke par Thursday over the hilly Atlanta Country Club course. Napa's Ron Cerrudo had a 72.

U.S. and British Opens champion Lee Trevino, winner last week at Memphis, shot a 74 Thursday and was so disgusted with himself he refused to talk about his round.

Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper, George Archer and Jerry Heard are not playing here this week in a field that includes 17 of the top 22 money winners and has been rated as a preview of the U. S. Open now only three weeks away.

San Geronimo Tennis

San Geronimo Valley Open Mixed Doubles tennis tournament will be held this weekend at the Woodacre Improvement Club. Saturday's play begins at 8 a.m., Sunday's quarter-finals at 9:15 a.m., and Monday semi-finals at 10:30 a.m. and finals 1 p.m.

Sizzling White Sox Face Holtzman, A's

OAKLAND (UPI) —While everybody figures Oakland and Minnesota will stage their annual battle for the American League West title, it is Chicago which is leading the division.

And the White Sox come to Oakland tonight to open a three-game series having won 12 of their last 13. They are 1½ games up on Oakland.

"They're no flash in the pan," warns A's pilot Dick Williams, who calls it "our first big series of the season."

It will be knuckleballer Wilbur Wood, who won 22 last season and is 7-2 this time around, for the White Sox tonight and Ken Holtzman (6-2) for the A's in a confrontation of slow vs. fast.

Wood, who throws so easily he needs only two days rest, says his idea on most pitches "is to keep the ball from spinning. It should rotate no more than one and a half times in the 60 feet to the plate."

Holtzman, on the other hand, can hum it with the best of them.

And maybe the best hummer of them all will go for Oakland Sunday when Vida Blue makes his first start of the season.

He pitched one inning Wednesday night and took the loss, but Williams says he "was nervous. But he'll be all right."

The A's were idle Thursday.

Nystrom, Staub Lead Suburban's 8-0 Win

Joe Nystrom pitched a two-hit shutout and received ample backing when Dennis Staub hit a grand slam home run in the fourth inning as Suburban Auto Repair of San Rafael defeated Artichoke Joe's, 8-0, in a San Francisco "A" League softball game last night at Hayward Park.

Suburban, 25-9, over-all, leads the league with a 5-0 record.

Olympic Club Golf Pro Burton Vacates Post

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Kyle Burton, golf pro at the Olympic Club, has resigned to return to his home in Tennessee.

The board of directors said a successor would be named later.

Mays' Hit Beats Cubs

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Two weeks ago, Willie Mays was worth only a minor-league pitcher, but since then he's been worth more than the major-league pitchers he's faced.

Mays continued his string of timely hits yesterday by smacking a single to drive in the winning run as the New York Mets defeated the Chicago Cubs, 3-2, in a 14-inning contest in Chicago.

It was the third game-winning hit stroked by Mays since he was traded to the Mets by the San Francisco Giants for then minor-leaguer Charlie Williams May 11. He beat the Giants and Phillies with homers as well.

Tug McGraw pitched five shutout innings in relief to earn the New York victory, and Jerry Koosman, formerly a starter got the save.

Mays played the entire marathon game in center field and went two for six. "I just think I'm getting into condition for playing all the time now," said Mays. "I'm having fun with this club. They're real solid."

In the only other National League action, Bob Gibson got his first victory of the year after five defeats as St. Louis defeated Pittsburgh, 4-2. Ted Sizemore hit his first home run of the season for the Cardinals.

In the American League, Fritz Peterson pitched New York to a 2-r victory over Cleveland; Milwaukee's Skip Lockwood shut out Detroit and Mickey Lolich, 2-0; Minnesota nipped Texas, 6-5; and Kansas City beat California, 5-2.

"I've been saying all along, the only thing wrong with this club is the fact that Roy White and Bobby Murcer haven't started to hit," Yankees' manager Ralph Houk said after the victory. "As for Fritz, that 0-6 record was very deceiving. He pitched well in six of his first eight games — we just didn't hit for him."

In Detroit, Lockwood, one of the acres of the young Milwaukee pitching staff last year with 10 victories, finally got his first of the season by outdueling

4-GAME SET

Giants In Atlanta; Marichal On Mound

ATLANTA (UPI) — Two teams with a lot of potential but not much to show for it yet in 1972 go at it tonight when the San Francisco Giants call on Atlanta in the opener of a four-game set.

It will be Juan Marichal, who has pitched well but still is only 1-7 for the skittery Giants, going against Ron Reed of the Braves. Reed is 1-6 for the season.

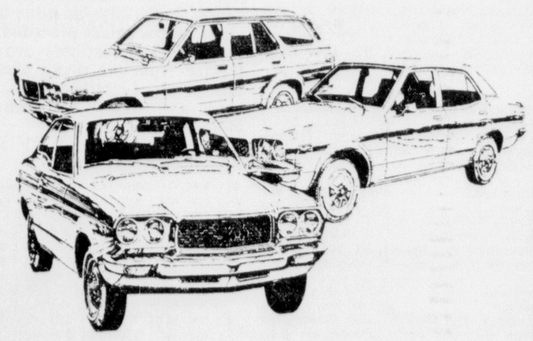

The Giants, who were idle Thursday, are fresh from taking two of three from tough Los Angeles and have shown good hitting and pitching of late. But a leaky defense, immaturity, and the inability to adjust to the loss of Willie McCovey have taken the Giants deep into the National League West cellar.

But Atlanta is only 3 1-2 games up on the Giants, which is strange for a club that can send Felix Millan, Ralph Garr, Henry Aaron, Orlando Cepeda, Rico Carty and Earl Williams up in about that order.

But Aaron has been inconsistent and Cepeda has knee problems and the pitching staff has manager Lum Harris ready to try dial-a-prayer.

FISH AND GAME

For Abalone Picker It's A 'Losing' Day

By AL GIDDINGS

On a check along the Sonoma coast for abalones, one of the wardens noted a fellow coming up the trail with nine abalones strung on a wire. Five of the abalones were undersized even by sight, and with the limit just five, the overlimit was also quite evident. The fisherman, seeing the warden, quickly said, "Boy, am I glad to see you — I have lost my measure so I want you to measure these for me."

The warden countered, "You must have lost your counter too!" The man then said, "Yes, I lost my counter at the same time that I lost my measure." If you were the warden what would you have done? (That's what he did too!)

PROSPECTS ARE rated good to fair for the opening tomorrow of the northwest trout and salmon season, the Department of Fish and Game reports.

According to the DFG, most of the young steelhead should have gone to sea by opening day.

This northwest season includes all streams in Del Norteand Humboldt counties; in the Mad River drainage below Ruth Dam in Trinity County; in the Eel River drainage in Lake, Mendocino and Trinity counties; in the Applegate River drainage in Siskiyou County, and in the Klamath River drainage including all tributary streams below Iron Gate and Dwinnel dams in Siskiyou County and below Lewiston Dam in Trinity County.

THE LIMIT is 10 trout or salmon in combination, but not more than 10 pounds and one fish, except for reduced limits on certain waters for which anglers are urged to check regulation booklets. The season continues through Nov. 15.

Among best bets, according to the DFG, is the Mad River drainage below Ruth Dam where resident rainbow running to 2 and 3 pounds are in prospect for the determined angler.

There should be some good catches of pan-sized coastal cutthroat trout in the small coastal streams north of Humboldt Bay and in the lower tributaries of the Klamath and Smith rivers. Prairie and Hunter creeks also should be good, and Siskiyou County's Kidder Creek, among others, should produce resident trout.

IN MENDOCINO County, Hammerhorn Lake and Howard Reservoir are expected to provide some good fishing.

New waters in the area include Howard Lake on Howard Creek, a tributary to the Middle Fork of the Eel River, which formerly was in private ownership and is now open to the public. The U.S. Forest Service is building a campground there.

Streams throughout the northwest will be lower than on comparable dates in previous years. Roads will be open and generally in good condition.

FLY FISHING for shad is reported as hot in the Marysville-Yuba City area.

Trout plants are scheduled this week for Rodeo Lagoon, Bon Tempe, Lagunitas and Phoenix reservoirs. You better get up there in a hurry. At San Marin High School in Novato, teacher Bob Martin is giving a class in fishing to 40 senior girls. I'm supposed to give them a talk on fishing in Marin. It could be that we'll take the whole outfit trout fishing! Who said this job was tough?

Two Seals Jump To New League

OAKLAND (UPI) —Two California Seals are switching to the Raiders—the New York Raiders that is.

Goalie Gary Kurt and winger Norm Ferguson were two of a half-dozen National Hockey League stars who defected to the New York team of the fledgling World Hockey Association Thursday.

Kurt and Ferguson shifted leagues a day after the Seals' top farm player, Pete Laframboise, announced his intention to sign with Los Angeles of the WHA.

Ferguson, 27, scored 34 goals as a rookie four years ago but has been slowed by injuries to his 165-pound frame in recent seasons.

He said Thursday "I spent four years in Oakland, a couple good, a couple bad. I thought why not start fresh with a new organization. There was no friction with the Seals and I liked the place, but I wasn't satisfied with myself and I felt I wasn't producing the way I should. I thought maybe a change would help."

Kurt complained about his lack of playing time with the Seals.

The 25-year-old netminder gave up a 4.29 goals-per-game average in 16 games in the net for California. He said he was told he would play 20 games next year.

"The money is important, too," Kurt said Thursday, "but I'm in this game to play and you can't learn much sitting on the bench."

GOLF NOTES

Two Aces On Marin Courses

A pair of holes-in-one were scored this past week on Marin County golf courses.

Mrs. Harris Martin of San Rafael, who just joined Las Gallinas Golf Club last month, yesterday shot an ace on the 95-yard fourth hole there, using a nine-iron. The shot was witnessed by Mrs. Harry Rodrigues.

Last Monday, Mrs. Kenneth Lax of Novato hit a hole-in-one on the fly, directly in the cup on the 133-yard second hole at Marin Country Club. She used a five-iron for the shot, witnessed by her husband.

Jack and Jill went up the hill . . .

But it was Warren Smith, Dick Honey, Mrs. Frank Duddy and Mrs. Frank Haggerty who came down with the prize — victory in the San Geronimo Jack and Jill Tournament, mixed foursome, best ball play featuring husbands and wives.

The quartet bested 10 other teams Sunday in the tournament with a 58, one stroke better than the 59 of runnerups Larry Gapinski, Jack Velte, Mrs. Tom Baldwin and Mrs. Earl Berg.

8-2 WIN-LOSS RECORD

Perry's 'Special Pitch' Bothering A.L. Batters

By VITO STELLINO

NEW YORK (UPI)—Gaylord Perry had to leave his heart and his family in San Francisco but he seems to have managed to bring his "special" pitch along with him to Cleveland.

The result is that Perry, who won only 16 games last season, has won eight of his first 10 decisions and is the main reason why the Indians are a surprising first place team in the American League East.

IN SCHOOL

Perry admits his initial reaction to the trade wasn't that favorable. "I hated to leave San Francisco," he says, "I love the people there." And Perry's wife and four children haven't been able to join him in Cleveland yet because the youngsters are finishing out the school term.

But as his record shows, Perry has quickly adjusted to a new league and new group of batters after being with the Giants since 1962. "I like to look at the positive side," he says, "I've been fortunate to get off to a good start."

ADVICE

Perry says he got advice on how to pitch to the American League hitters from his brother Jim, who pitches for Minnesota, and he also counts a lot on catcher Ray Fosse.

"Ray is the most underrated player in the league," Perry says. "I have complete confidence in him."

But the opposing American League hitters think a certain pitch with a foreign substance on it also has played a big role in Perry's success.

"He puts vaseline or baby oil or something slick like that on the ball," New York Yankee centerfielder Bobby Murcer insists.

In his sixth and seventh victories, Texas manager Ted Williams and Detroit manager Billy Martin both complained to the umpires about Perry but, like the National League managers who used to complain, they got nowhere.

VASELINE

Martin even announced he was going to tell his pitchers to rub Vaseline all over themselves. When Perry was informed of that statement, he said with a deadpan, "that's illegal."

Perry thinks the fuss is to his advantage. "If the hitters are looking for that pitch," Perry says, "they might not be able to hit the others."

One manager who agrees with him is Ralph Houk of the Yankees, who didn't bother to protest when Perry beat the Yankees 3-0 on a four-hitter last Tuesday night. "What good did it do those managers who complained?" Houk asked. "And once you get those hitters moaning and thinking about that pitching, they're looking for it every time and then he'll slip that slow curve right past them."

CREDIT

Houd adds, "you've got to give Perry a lot of credit for being able to throw that pitch. A lot of pitchers would do it if they could. And it wasn't that pitch he beat us with, he beat us because he simply doesn't make very many bad pitches."

Ken Aspromonte, the Cleveland manager, backs Houk up. "He's a smart guy for not complaining because it can become a psychological thing with the hitters," he says. Aspromonte adds, "I don't know if he throws a spitter or not, he never told me."

FOR McDOWELL

Aspromonte, in his rookie season as a manager, has turned around a Cleveland club that lost 102 games last year and Perry has been one of the main reasons for the Indians' success. Perry was obtained with Frank Dufey for Sam McDowell, and while McDowell is doing well for San Francisco, Aspromonte is delighted with the deal.

"Sam wore out his welcome in Cleveland," Aspromonte says, "he didn't pan out and he represented a losing image. I don't mean to knock the guy, I talked with Sam and figured it was for the best."

Now Perry represents the kind of image Aspromonte likes —a winning one.

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Denny McLain, the former 31-game winner for the Detroit Tigers, got bombed off the mound again Thursday night in his second start for the Oakland A's farm club in the AA Southern League.

Horse Racing

CAMDEN, N.J. — A steward for the New Jersey Racing Commission said Thursday that after this week's hearings before the House Crime Committee in Washington, racing officials will have to "go back to the drawing board" and develop a better system of identifying "ringers."

An investigator fgr the Thoroughbred Racing Protective Bureau told the committee Thursday that organized crime had developed a scheme for racing fast horses under the names of slower ones. The investigator said "ringers" competed at 12 tracks in nine states, including New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Stewart Keene Dangerfield said that until recently, "we had what we believed to be a foolproof system of identifying horses used in races.

Hockey

NEW YORK — The lucky winners in the latest National Hockey League sweepstakes will have to wait another two weeks before learning the good news.

After hearing the last of the 10 petitioners make their presentations on Thursday, the NHL Board of Governors decided to postpone for two weeks the awarding of two new franchises for tha 1974-75 season. The announcement will be made during the annual NHL meetings at Montreal starting June 5.

Gymnastics

LONG BEACH — Cathy Rigby, 18-year-old favorite from Long Beach, took a spill Thursday and dropped out of first place in the U.S. Women's Olympic Gymnastics Trials.

Miss Rigby, leading after the first five events of the 16 trial contests, caught her leg under instead of over the high bar of the uneven parallel bars and fell seven feet to the mat. She was unhurt but collected only 8.15 points for the event and fell into a tie for fourth place among the 30 girls.

Linda Metheny, 25, of the McKinley YMCA, Champaign, Ill., who had been in second place, turned in a 9.70 performance of the unparallel bars to move into first place with 56.85 points after six events.

Ygnacio Valley won the game with a single run in the seventh. Dennis Luquet reached first on an error by the second baseman, stole second, and scored on Marshall Johnson's single.

Skyline's Carrothers broke a 5-5 tie with a two-run, two-out homer in the bottom of the sixth inning to defeat El Cerrito. The game was a see-saw affair which saw Skyline go ahead 3-0 in the fourth inning, get tied at 3-3, go ahead 5-3 and get tied at 5-5 before Carrothers won it.

Lolich, the Tigers' eight-game winner. Lockwood, who yielded six hits, got all the runs he needed in the fourth inning when Ellie Rodriguez belted a two-run homer with Mike Ferraro aboard. For Lolich, it was the first loss ever to the Brewers.

Luis Aparicio scored one run, drove in another and teamed up with Duane Josephson to execute the first triple play of the season as the Red Sox edged the Orioles. The triple play, Boston's first since 1967, came in the fourth when Terry Crowley singled and went to second on a walk to Don Baylor. Elrod Hendricks lined to Josephson who then stepped on first to double Baylor and threw to Aparicio to nail Crowley at second. Marty Pattin got his first victory of the year for the Bosox after five losses.

Rod Carew's perfect squeeze bunt in the seventh inning scored Cesar Tovar with the winning run in the twins' victory over Texas. Tovar led off the inning with a double and was sacrificed to third before Carew's bunt.

Paul Schaal hit his first homer of the season and Kansas City took advantage of California mistakes to score three unearned runs and beat the Angels. The loss was California's sixth in their last seven games.

Drivers' Meeting At Indy

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) —Drivers received formal instructions today from the U.S. Auto Club on the eve of the 56th annual Indianapolis 500-mile race, which should be the fastest ever run.

Mostly sunny skies with temperatures in the 80s should prevail at the flying start of the holiday weekend classic at noon Saturday.

Today's traditional driver's meeting was the final official session for drivers, car owners and crews prior to the start of the 33-car chase.

Many of the cars were still torn down Thursday as the "lull before the storm" prevailed at the famed 2 1-2-mile circuit. No cars were allowed on the track after Wednesday's carburetion tests until the race itself Saturday.

Tomorrow's race will be on delayed telecast by ABC, from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m.

Boxing Bill Passed By State Assembly

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The California Assembly has passed, 69-0, and sent to the Senate a measure requiring the manager of a professional boxer to file quarterly reports with the state Athletic Commission showing the boxer's expenses and purse for each bout.

Grand Jury Probe Of Pro Grid Ends

Pete Rozelle, commissioner of the NFL, said Thursday that a Federal Grand Jury, which has been meeting in Cleveland for the past 18 months and investigating pro football on alleged charges of monopoly and the boycotting of players, has been dismissed.

Rozelle, who announced the news on the final day of the owners' spring meeting, said he had learned that no indictments had been recommended by the Grand Jury.

The Commissioner had been openly critical of the Grand Jury s probe because he felt it had done pro football considerable damage. The Grand Jury called several witnesses during its investigation, including ex-NFL players Dave Meggysey, Bernie Parrish and Johnny Sample, all of whom made public statements afterward that were critical of the NFL.

"Pro football suffered tremendously in that there was no way to refute these charges," said Rozelle. Rozelle said that some clubs actually had been threatened by players who said they would go to Cleveland to testify if certain demands were not met.

Other announcements to come out of Thursday's meeting were the re-election of owners Lamar Hunt of Kansas City and George Halas of Chicago as presidents of the American and National Conferences and the awarding of the 1974 Pro Bowl Game to Kansas City.

The owners also decided to continue the College All-Star Game, at least through the 1974 season. The Game, which is played every summer in Chicago, pits the defending NFL champions against a selected group of college stars who were high-round draft choices.

But the pros have dominated the game by such a large margin in recent years that there had been some support to abolish it.

OTC Bond Not Easily Followed

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I own 5M Pacific Gas & Electric 8-5/8s of 2002. These were to be listed on the NYSE with price printed weekly in our local paper. My broker has to call his New York office to get quotes. What happened to this bond? — V.E.

A. Pacific Gas & Electric has 37 separate bond series not all of which are listed on the Big Board. You hold one of the 10 issues which is traded Over-The-Counter. Current quotes on OTC bonds are not readily available but can be found on the yellow sheets, printed daily by the National Quotation Bureau.

The Pacific Gas first and refunding mortgage bond Series UU, which you hold, trades infrequently and in a relatively narrow range. During 1971 the price ranged between 102 and 108¼. Most recent trade on this bond was at 107.

Series VV carrying an 8-⅞ per cent coupon, expiring in 2002 also is listed on the NYSE. The price on this issue is usually two to three points higher than the UU bond; perhaps you might follow this bond to get an idea of the value of your own holding.

Q. What is the matter with Adams-Millis (NYSE)? The company seem strong financially; is there a reason for the price being so depressed? Is there hope for recovery? — B.F.

A. Poor earnings record for recent quarters is the main reason shares are trading at such a depressed level. In the March quarter this year Adams-Millis reported the first loss in its history. The 12 cents a share deficit was attributed primarily to its TexElastic division.

Hosiery sales and profits were higher and improving. However, the fabric division had a small loss for the period, although operations were profitable in March.

Three acquisitions in 1971 placed Adams squarely in the highly competitive double knit field. Integration of these operations has not been without problems. According to management, plants recently completed and under construction will add substantially to profits by late 1973.

The added capacity would allow sales volume to virtually double. Recovery is probable if you are willing to wait.

Odds On Wornum In Third District

Of the three contests for Marin County supervisorial posts this year, the only one sure to be decided at the June 6 primary is that in the Third District (Southern Marin).

Incumbent Michael Wornum has a single opponent for the position: Rev. Samuel L. Banks Jr., longtime Marin City civic leader. Thus, one or the other is sure to get a majority of votes cast in the primary.

The odds are pretty long that one will be Wornum.

Rev. Banks is a man of integrity and good intentions. He is an able advocate of the needs of Marin City — and they are many. But on the basis of his showing against Wornum in the Primary four years ago, he does not appear to be a formidable contender. That time, Rev. Banks ran fourth in a field of six, getting 1,958 votes. Wornum, who led the field (and won election the following November) got 7,150.

WE HAVE FOUND plenty to criticize in Michael Wornum's performance as county supervisor. He has been inconsistent in his approach to zoning matters, and has been one of those who seem more eager to inject the county board into state, national and even international problems than to concentrate on the job for which the board is elected.

Wornum's vacillating performance on the appointment of a new county administrator, which found him first urging nation-wide recruiting and then switching to a quick in-house appointment without so much as an interview of a candidate, was certainly less than commendable.

His vacillation was similar in the case of Paul C. Zucker, county planning director who ran two years ago against John F. McInnis for supervisor. When Zucker entered the race, Wornum said he should resign as planning director. Then he voted to instead give Zucker leave of absence until after the primary. Zucker in his campaign made it clear that he was in bitter opposition to existing board policies. He was soundly defeated. But then Wornum (and Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni) voted against dismissing him — seeming to indicate endorsement of board policy being subjugated to the planning director's conflicting policy.

UNFORTUNATELY, Rev. Banks in his campaign has shown little indication that he would be more consistent, or that he is more cognizant of the importance of appointments to the county's bureaucratic hierarchy and of keeping policy control concentrated in the elected board of supervisors.

Despite his sometimes debonair approach to them, Wornum's understanding of county problems appears to be deeper and more complete than does that of his opponent. He certainly has the experience for the job, having put in long service on the Mill Valley City Council before his election as supervisor and having served on various district and regional boards and commissions. Rev. Banks's government experience is negligible, although he has had an active career in other kinds of civic service.

As we said in the beginning, the odds are long that Michael Wornum will win re-election in the primary.

We think he deserves to do so.

Education Board Choice Starts Political Dispute

By RUS WALTON

Republican women throughout California have been stirring up the pot over the recent appointment of Dr. David A. Hubbard.

Hubbard, 43, is the president of Fuller Theological Seminary in Pasadena who was recently named to the state Board of Education by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The law requires Senate confirmation of appointments to that board. Hubbard's confirmation is being held in Senate Rules Committee because the governor's office is fearful that Republican seantors will vote him down.

Senate Democrats, led by James Mills (San Diego), have acclaimed Hubbard as one of the better appointments Governor Reagan has made. They threaten to block the reappointment of Gene Ragle, Roseville radio station manager, unless Republicans agree to go along with Hubbard.

Ragle, 45, is considered the conservative spokesman on the board of education. Republican women are as adamant about Ragle's reappointment as they are about Hubbard's removal.

RECENTLY, HUBBARD met with a group of Republican women in Los Angeles. They wanted to see what made him tick. They came away from the one and one-half hour meeting shaking their heads over some of the ideas espoused by the good doctor.

For one thing, he allowed as how he thought the state should start educating children at the age of two or three. That did not win him any points with the ladies.

Hubbard was an early and active advocate of compulsory busing of Pasadena school children to achieve racial integration. He assured the Republican women he believed in "quality education." When pressed to define "quality education", he responded that the first goal of education should be to train children to get along with each other. The A-B-Cs and the 2-plus-2s come somewhere after that.

As a result of their meeting with Dr. Hubbard, the women wrote their state senators reaffirming their opposition to his appointment.

SUBSEQUENTLY, the governor's office attempted to pacify the GOP women. The ladies were promised that, if they would simmer down on the Hubbard appointment, they could choose the person to fill a vacancy which now exists on the board of education.

So far the ladies have refused to budge. They say the idea of being forced to accept a pro-busing, pro-early education liberal as a way to get a conservative appointed to the board is repugnant. Not just repugnant; incredible.

Hubbard, who claims to be a staunch defender of "civil rights", cast an interesting vote at his first meeting of the board of education in April.

Along with five other members of the 10-member board, he voted against Dr. John Ford, who was seeking to step up from vice president to president of the board.

Dr. Ford is a successful and respected physician in San Diego. A prominent and devout Seventh-Day Adventist, he worked his was through medical school with the help of his wife, who is a registered nurse. His brother is a full colonel in the Army.

Dr. Ford is black. He is also strongly opposed to compulsory busing.

In February, 1971, when Henry T. Gunderson was elected board president, Ford was elected vice president. At that time, it was generally agreed that Ford would be the next president. He was defeated, 6-4; one of the men who voted for him was Gene Ragle.

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

The power-seeking despots of the world, the propagandists, have long known the power of words. They have been trying to steal the finest and dearest words that free society has inherited, in order to subvert them to the purposes of tyranny. The word "peace" is the best example. "Democracy" is used lavishly by those who would destroy it. "The people" are enshrined in the formal titles of nations which deny the rights of people. — Erwin D. Canham.

Objects To Report On MMWD Meeting

Where was the I-J at the MMWD symposium on May 20, when the individual citizens were participating? Saturday's article avoided much. A public agency planned ahead to listen sincerely to the people (three cheers); many spoke intelligently and tried to come to grips with the very serious, practical and philosophical questions of water. What is the love affair in the back pantry that blinds you to the efforts of individuals?

I believe it was brought out that the water board has immense potential power in directing our individual and corporate lives. In the extreme, when water will be scarce, we will change whether we want to or not; and yet the people who are in the business of land insist our public agencies must provide water for more and more sprawl, and quickly before we answer the question posed in the book "The Limits of Growth": can we afford to grow?

Why did the I-J report only the attacks of land-oriented businesses? I recognize that they are individuals fighting for their jobs; but I am fighting for life. . .

New Population Control: 'Hydraulic Post-Abortion'

I am a relative newcomer to Marin County who believes this is the finest of all places in which to live.

Recently I came upon statements by a candidate for the Marin Municipal Water District, Dr. Ronald Stafford, which made me wonder if I should fear for the future of my investments in Marin, or laugh at his childish impudence, in any event I was angered by the arrogance of this newcomer who would usurp the rights of the voter and the chartered responsibilities of those officials whom we elect.

Dr. Stafford would "zone by water" if elected to the water district board. This man would control zoning and population by controlling the issuance of water hookup permits.

Whether or not a family could have water would be determined, I suppose, by his great self-acknowledged wisdom — a wisdom that in my opionion must result from messianic delusions.

Does this newcomer who brought Marin his great powers only 18 months ago then say that the many elected city commissions, planning commissions and their professional planning staffs are incompetent, dishonest, lazy or simply inferior when compared to his greatness? His plans obviously would usurp their authority and circumvent the will of the voters.

The next logically illogical step of this would-be "Czar of the Water Taps" would be to control population by shutting off the water of those families who gave birth to or adopted too many children. Seemingly, a new technique has been discovered, we might call it "Existence Deprivation by Water Tap" or more simply HPA, Hydraulic Post-Abortion . . .

Peculiar History Of Sub-zone 9-A

Several conflicting statements and actions by Mr. Arrigoni regarding the Ross Valley Flood Control Sub-zone 9-A point out the inconsistency and inefficiency of present county operation.

Sub-zone 9-A, supposedly a creek maintenance district, was established in 1970 over the strong opposition of Sleepy Hollow, the only community which had a chance to study it. In spite of this opposition, a 5-cent tax rate was tacked on to the taxpayers of Greenbrae, Kentfield, Kent Woodlands, Sleepy Hollow, Oak Manor and Del Mesa. Residents in these areas still seem to be unaware of this new taxing jurisdiction.

Sub-zone 9-A minutes reveal that when the seven-man board met for the first time in March of 1971, they were handed a capital improvement budget of approximately $400,000, with a tax rate of 35 cents per $100 assessed valuation. Mr. Arrigoni and county staff acted as advisors at this meetin.

Mr. Arrigoni had repeatedly stated in his communication and during his appearances in Sleepy Hollow that this would be strictly a creek maintenance zone. Yet, it would seem that he and county staff had been planning a capital improvement district right along.

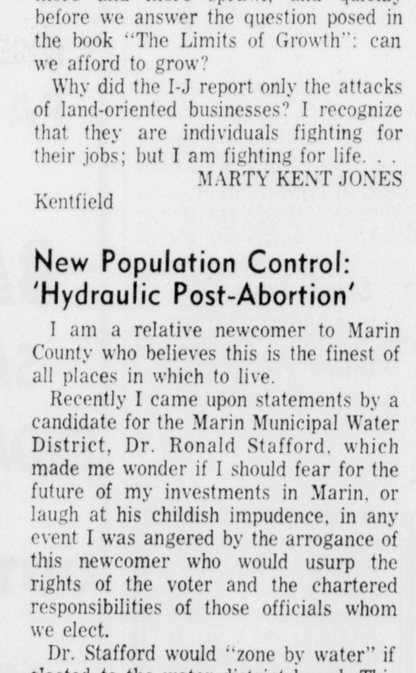

It was Sub-zone-9 A board who balked at the costly capital improvement projects presented by county staff, and they are now questioning the present 5-cent tax rate for creek maintenance, since it has become obvious that its Mother-zone 9 would be able to do the job for a fraction of that. . .

Those of us who have been following the formation of 9-A since its prenatal days, wonder about all the other projects that get through without public notice, while government cost continues to skyrocket.

Sweeping Proposition 9 Results From Too Much Foot-Dragging

LOS ANGELES — During most of last week a great low-pressure area covered the West, occasional showers took the edge off the Southern California drought, and off to the north you could actually see the Hollywood Hills and the mountains beyond.

But even when you cannot see the California smog or feel it in your eyes, you hear about it. And what you hear these days is a debate over the most comprehensive antipollution measure ever seriously considered by any state, a ballot proposition that so far has Californians far more worked up than the presidential primary election in which they will vote the same day. Polluters and politicians elsewhere had better pay attention.

PROPOSITION 9 is so broad and uncompromising that it has nearly every public official, business and labor leader and even some environmental groups aroused against it. Banks, oil companies, utilities, construction, steel, aluminum, cement and other industries are financing a colossally expensive campaign against it. But it may pass anyway.

The political initiative to put it on the ballot began two years ago, when a coalition calling itself the People's Lobby set out to frustrate the business lobbies that had been so effective in keeping strong antipollution bills from clearing the state legislature. The coalition gathered more than 520,000 signatures to bypass the lawmakers at Sacramento by putting the question directly to the people.

That question, if answered with a yes, will become an order for a five-year moratorium on construction of new nuclear power plants, halt offshore oil drilling, ban dangerous pesticides, phase out leaded gasoline, and require that diesel fuel be sulfur-free.

Beyond that, it will give the public the right to sue polluting industries, make public the records of air pollution control boards, forbid conflict of interest on all environmental protection boards, and end industrial exemptions from smog-control laws — all by one flick of the voter's wrist.

YOU CAN IMAGINE the apoplexy going around in the better circles. One of the most restrained reactions was by a letter-to-the-editor writer from Saratoga, who said, "It is a meat-ax type of legislation that would not only bring economic chaos to California, but would set back the cause of constructive conservation for many years to come." Whitaker and Baxter, the veteran political public relations firm, put out a leaflet using more colorful Reagan-Agnew rhetoric — declaring that those pushing the proposition are "an odd combination of Wealthy 'ecology' extremists and commune-living dropouts."

Of course, some of them are. But even California does not have enough of those to pass a statewide proposition. The mass of those intending to vote for it are the same stripe of fed-up Americans who have, rationally or not, given George Wallace and George McGovern such resounding returns in the earlier primary states. They feel the machinery of the status quo is not working, and therefore, some shaking up is in order. The most common combination of bumper stickers here advises votes for both McGovern and Proposition 9, and the success of either one will help the other.

The unresponsive machinery under attack is the state legislature. When the signature collection effort for the ballot initiative began, the environment-conscious Los Angeles Times said editorially that "if anything should spur the legislators into more stringent smog-control laws, this is it." But it didn't.

THE LEGISLATURE thinks in Whitaker and Baxter terms and failed to take seriously such a far-out campaign by an alleged bunch of old eccentrics and young freaks. So the spurring worked in the other direction: the repeated defeat of ecology measures added fire to the Proposition 9 campaign. Just last week it got an added kick from the death of a bill to protect the California coastline from further private exploitation.

The anticampaign, which admitted that by the end of April it had raised $842,000 from 195 sources to fight the proposition (compared to $172,000 from 8,000 contributors in support), is just beginning a massive homestretch publicity offensive. Its argument that the proposition is impetuous has a lot of truth to it — especially regarding the nuclear plant moratorium, which would necessitate building more fossil-fuel plants instead, with their resulting smoke pollution.

But the millions of Californians in favor of Proposition 9 have heard and conducted calm, logical arguments for years. They want some action. Now you can find as many public pulse-takers who think the initiative will pass as you can those who think so much counter-cash cannot be denied. And if it does pass, despite the efforts of all the best people, you may have to conclude that it serves them right.

NIXON IN MOSCOW

Hard Work And No Romance At Second Communist Capital

By STEWART HENSLEY

MOSCOW (UPI) —President Nixon's China trip in February was high adventure. His visit to Moscow has been simply hard work.

It obviously was much more exciting to accompany Nixon on exotic jaunts to the Great Wall, the Forbidden City and mysterious Shanghai than it is to wait in a Moscow press room for driblets of information on presidential meetings behind the Kremlin walls.

Chasing Pat Nixon on a chaotic tour of the Moscow subway may stimulate middle aged lungs and limbs. But it can't compare for sheer exhilaration to attending a dinner given by Chou En-Lai at which Richard Nixon raised a glass to the Peking revolutionary Committee while the People's Liberation Army Band played "America the Beautiful."

THE DIFFERENCE between the two visits stems, of course, from the fact that they had different objectives.

The President went to Peking in an effort to begin liquidating a quarter century of estrangement between the United States and China.

The Chinese were ready to begin the normalization process, once Nixon convinced them he was truly anxious to deal with Peking as a major power.

The result was a mutual display of good will and public cordiality that left American newsmen and officials alike with a warm glow —anticipating that better days were in the offing, though they may be slow arriving.

The trip to Moscow, with which the United States had had diplomatic relations for 39 years, lacked the lure of the mysterious. It was not designed for atmospheric effect.

The purpose was to nail down, if possible, specific agreements on limiting strategic nuclear weapons, expanding trade, easing tensions in Europe, and otherwise putting a more solid foundation under what Nixon fondly calls a "generation of peace."

GIVEN THESE differences it was clear from the beginning that for newsmen covering Nixon here was going to be somewhat less exciting than covering him behind the Bamboo Curtain in Old Cathay.

Russian officials are not normally accessible, whereas newsmen had a great number of contacts with Chinese officials, including Chou En-lai who personally shook hands with every one of the visiting reporters, technicians, engineers and baggage handlers who went to Peking —about 350 in all.

However, Chou was playing the game his way, underlying the "people-to-people" approach he has taken in relations with the United States.

While he is glad to greet visiting reporters, the Chinese leader intends to proceed very cautiously in expansion of official contacts.

The Russians, on the other hand, are simply engaged in another one of a series of summit meetings which began during World War II.

They are interested in doing business with the United States if it can be accomplished on terms acceptable to the Kremlin. Any public statements are designed to advance Russia's interests and fraternization with U.S. newsmen is not considered particularly essential in this respect.

COUNTY COMMENT

By WILLIAM D. (BILL) FUSSELMAN

Truth-In-Advertising Law Doesn't Apply To Candidates

It sure wonders one whether some incumbent office holders, up for re-election, think we are all happy, senseless geese web-footing along in the belief that the truth in advertising law includes the self-praising claims they are making?

Well, if they do, they are wrong. Anyone who spends even a few minutes a day reflecting on the throne room antics out at Brasilia is not fooled by such strutting by way of the media, mailings, or in the answer to questions at candidate meetings. Intelligent folk simply don't buy that stuff.

LET'S LOOK at an ad of the incumbent who is up for re-election in the Ross Valley District (second): "Led the successful fight to halt construction of Highway 17 through Ross Valley . . . " The fact: Voters of the district had put a stop to it and were discussing the then incumbent supervisor so that he wouldn't be around to start it over again. The present incumbent was supposed to help work out an alternative route. This he hasn't done.

Now another look: "(He) Personally convinced the state to allow the voters of Marin to decide the Marin-Sonoma Aqueduct issue."

The fact: During my last years on the board of supervisors, it was well understood that whenever the engineering for the project was completed, that our people would make the decision at the polls. He is saying in effect, that our Marin legislators were not going to let the voters they too represent have a go at it. How about that?

AGAIN FROM THE AD, re: Transportation: "(He) worked for sweeping improvements in inter-county and intra-county transit service . . . " Haven't we all, for years? Does he think he is entitled to a special crown? A chap named Dale Luehring, manager of the Golden Gate Bridge operation, is the boy who should take the bow. And he was rejected by our board of supervisors a few years ago when he applied for the job of county transit director. How lucky for everyone!

Some more from the ad: "He has been one of the toughest spokesmen for strong anti-pollution control laws as a member of the Bay Area Anti-Pollution Control Board." Yet the press has carried the story that he was a strong supporter of the manager, who, in turn, was charged with favoring big industrial polluters.

As a commuting San Francisco stockbroker, it would be interesting to know whether he rides the bus to work or adds to the pollution of our air by using his own car.

I supported him and helped elect him three years ago. At the beginning of his term I wrote in this column that we would be in good hands. This caused an old, well-versed friend to write me, "Bill, I hope you know what you are saying and are right, but I don't know."

A personal note: I have some business I must take care of so will not write a column for June 2 and possibly June 9. Will see you again after that.

Administration Highway Plan Called Too Strong For States

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Gov. Daniel J. Evans of Washington complained yesterday that administration highway proposals would weaken the role of the states in coping with transportation problems.

Evans, testifying on behalf of the National Governors' Conference before a Senate roads subcommittee, contended that the legislation would give state chief executives too little say over how badly needed transit money should be spent in their states.

The bill pending before the subcommittee would in part earmark a share of federal highway money for urban mass transit systems to be distributed directly through metropolitan regional councils or "consortia" without state approval.

"This limitation would tend to have a serious effect on state efforts to coordinate transportation planning and development," Evans said. "We are particularly concerned that the (proposed) act weakens the state role in coordinating metropolitan plans with total statewide needs."

Evans said the governors wholeheartedly endorse the underlying concept in the bill — that of creating a single federal trust fund to help finance all transportation systems, including public transit. But he said the section dealing with cities, dealing only with ground transportation and funneling money solely through metropolitan councils, is far too narrow.

"We are concerned that the (bill) contains an undesirable degree of rigidity by requiring the funds be spent in designated areas and on certain modes," the Washington Republican governor said. "Combined with the role of the consortium, these restrictions do much to eliminate the governor's leadership in establishing statewide transportation funding priorities.

Evans also said the amount of money contemplated for the unified transportation trust fund —beginning with $1 billion in fiscal 1974 —is "simply not sufficient" to do the job that must be done.

Strong opposition to the bill came from the American Automobile Association (AAA), which contended the administration proposals amount to a "raid" on highway funds, diverting them to buses and subways.

Current law earmarks revenue from highway user taxes solely for roadbuilding and that from aviation taxes specifically for improving air transportation. The bill would pool this money and use some of it for mass transit.

"The AAA firmly believes special highway user taxes should be used exclusively for highway programs, just as promised by the Congress when they were originally levied," said J. B. Creal, AAA executive vice president. "If not, then these taxes should be repealed.

"It is our belief that the vast majority of Americans still favor the continuation of the present concept of restricting the expenditure of highway user taxes to the construction and maintenance of highway facilities..."

EMERSON — Lyman Emerson, chairman of the executive development committee of the Mill Valley Arts Guild and member of the Mill Valley Art Commission, was among 500 delegates to "Arts on Main Street," a conference on the arts held last week in Minneapolis-St. Paul.

BERRY — Richard Berry Jr. has been awarded a bachelor of science degree from the College of Notre Dame in Belmont.

EICKELE — Roy E. Eickele of New Providence, N. J., son of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Eickele of 10 Pillsbury Lane, Novato, has been promoted to chief designer of Jacobs Engineering Company's plant in Mountainside, N. J.

Plea Bargain In Theft Case

In a plea bargain Robert Paul Hollenbeck, 24, of Novato pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Cgurt to burglarizing a Mill Valley home.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner set sentencing for July 10, but, in accord with the negotiated plea, he will receive no more than nine months in jail.

Hollenbeck was arrested on the patio of the home in March trying to leave with a color television set by officers who responded to a burglar alarm.

Marine Commander Is Being Treated

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (UPI)—Gen. Robert E. Cushman, commandant of the Marine Corps, probably will be released some time next week from the Naval hospital here, a hospital spokesman said Thursday.

Cushman, 57, former deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency, was stricken Tuesday with cellulitis, a tissue inflammation in his left leg, while inspecting West Coast bases.

False Oven Ads To Stop

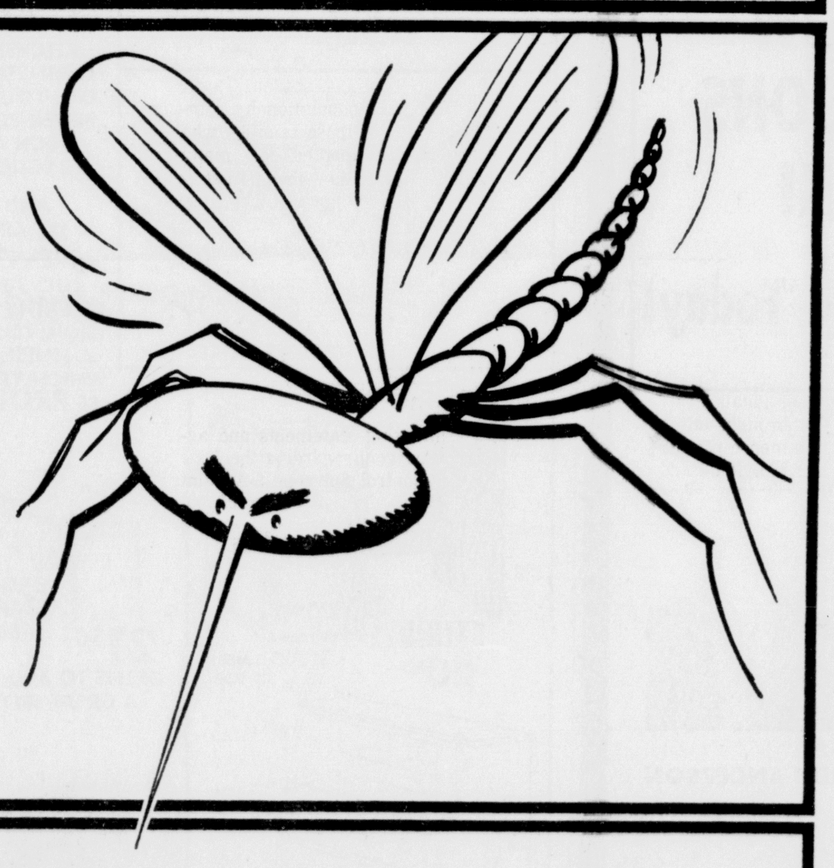

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The marketer of Toshiba Microwave ovens has agreed to stop allegedly false advertising which claimed safety from radiation leakage, the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) announced today.

The FTC said Toshiba falsely advertised that all its microwave ovens had been checked and met federal radiation standards; had been approved by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC); and would leak no more than 5 milliwatts radiation per square centimeter.

Actually, the FTC said, the federal standard had not been issued at the time of the 1970 ads, not all Toshiba ovens had been checked, the FCC merely assigned the microwave band for oven operation, and some Toshiba ovens leak more than 5 milliwatts radiation.

The Sacred Mosquitoes of California

Who wants to bring back typhoid? Or malaria? Or encephalitis? Only people who love mosquitoes.

The sponsors of Proposition No. 9 on the June 6 ballot must love mosquitoes—also termites, cockroaches and silverfish. Because Proposition No. 9 makes illegal the use or possession of a long list of chemicals, including the only effective pesticides for controlling various pests.

They must hate bees, though. Because the substitute pesticides that could still be used, though far less effective for many purposes, are death on bees. They're also dangerous to humans and pets.

If Proposition No. 9 passed, you could be arrested for having on your premises a can of insect spray you'd purchased some time ago if it happened to contain one of a long list of suddenly illegal ingredients.

A university scientist could be arrested for experimenting with any of these banned chemicals in a laboratory research project.

What kind of sense does all this make?

Like most things about Proposition No. 9, it doesn't make any sense at all.

It doesn't make sense to risk the resurgence of epidemic diseases that have been kept in control for so many years that most of us have virtually forgotten they ever existed.

It doesn't make sense to risk the destruction of forests and agricultural crops.

It doesn't make sense to prohibit scientists from experimenting to develop new knowledge in the field of pest control.

It doesn't make sense to forbid the use of the only known effective means of protecting your house from termite infestation.

Proposition No. 9 is senseless—and very dangerous.

There's good in most religions, and harm in some. The protected, "sacred cows" of India have contributed to that country's abject poverty for centuries. It would be the height of folly to yield to the fanatics who, in their zeal for a new "religion," would inflict on all of us the "sacred mosquitoes" of California!

Vote NO on Proposition No. 9

There are too many bugs in it!

Judge E. Warren McGuire ordered the prison term for the janitor convicted by a jury April 19 of selling $380 worth of heroin to a Marin drug agent last year.

Scott turned himself in to San Francisco police Oct. 14 after learning he was wanted for the sale of an ounce of the white powder Aug. 17 in Sausalito.

A Marin probation officer said he saw little hope of successful probation for Scott, who refused to accept his involvement in crime.

ers condemned white society in general for controlling the role of blacks, the state official declared, "The American people, aside from the handful of ultimate definers of reality in the upper levels, have very little social control over the economic, class and political forces of the American dynamic. . .in fact, are manipulated by them."

The black educator must learn and be able to control the forces, he argued, without enjoying "the illusion that integration is real. . .for himself and a possibility for all blacks." When other blacks raise doubts about the value of integration "the black educator as an intellectual is forced to question his own hard-won status."

Broussard urged the black intellectual to "take the rostrum" to explain to all levels of society that today's education is not a way out of the ghetto, but rather perpetuates it.

He also charged the educators with the task of persuading black separatists that "in the long run, continued opposition to white alliance will be counter-productive."

He declared that many educators lack competency to deal with "any group of children who are different," even if the teacher has a minority background.

He argued that parents and students "who are the supposed beneficiaries of education" must gain the power to to define the goals of schooling, and America's schools must "respect the diversity" of ethnic backgrounds and abandon the "downright wrong" attitude that the melting pot is desirable.

"Integration is nothing more than a hypocritical trick," Farrakhan declared earlier.

Waving his hands in the air, the youthful spiritual leader and teacher said, "If I have a bean pie in this hand and an apple pie in the other, and Islice each of them into eight pieces, and mix the pieces half in each hand, will I have integration pie? No!"

Subdued encouragements of "right on," came from the intent audience. A row of Farrakhan's associates and bodyguards stood rigidly on each side of the room, while others patrolled silently and watchfully outside the meeting room, with Homburgs square on their forehead and leather trenchcoats gleaming in the sun.

"In New York City," the University of Islam "soon will take over every black school," the minister said, to solve the problem of the "disruptive black child" who has beendifficult for both black and white teachers to cope with.

Farrakhan declared that segregated Southern schools have "been more productive in a black sense" than integrated schools elsewhere.

"We want youngsters to learn themselves as blacks — once their identity is set, they can mingle with all the others in the world" as "superior black men, not as inferior white men," he said.

Farrakhan briefly outlined his sect's belief that coeducation classes are distracting, and that children should begin schooling at age 3 or younger.

"When you start to flunk students, you're failing as a teacher," the minister warned. "And some of you have no love for students. How in the hell can you teach what you don't love? Some have asked me why I don't use notes to teach. Does a man use notes to approach the woman he loves?"

Teachers must "clean up and make a good example" for children. "You cannot teach a student to be any more than you are," he told the audience. He condemned miniskirts, artificial makeup, and called big-city public schools "worse than a brothel" because teachers "cannot condemn drugs and be reefer smokers themselves." He also decried public school hiring of homosexual teachers.

Turning to Women's Lib, he told women in the audience, "You can never be liberated from nature. It is your nature to look for happiness in a man. The nature of man is to be out in front of the woman."

The three-day conference, the first of its kind in the nation, ends this evening.

Fragging Death Trial Sept. 5.

FT. ORD (UPI)—Pvt. Billy Smith will probably go on trial Sept. 5 on charges of the fragging deaths of two officers in Vietnam.

After more than a year of legal proceedings, the date was set Thursday by military judge Col. Rawls Frazier.

Fire Dept. Aide Is Found Dead

A lieutenant in the San Francisco Fire Department, apparently having shot himself in the head, was found dead yesterday behind the garage of his Belvedere home, according to the Marin County Coroner's Office.

Robert E. Bourke, 58, of 417 Golden Gate Avenue, was discovered lying on the ground with a 14-gauge shotgun between his legs, said the coroners office. He had aimed the fatal shot into the roof of his mouth.

He was found at 9:10 a.m. lying on a plastic sheet with a pillow and a painter's drop cloth beneath his head, according to deputy coroner Donald L. Cornish.

He was a native Californian.

His survivors include his wife, Helen, his two daughters, Barbara Ehlert, of Pleasanton and Sandra Blackson of Hayward and two grandchildren.

Private service was held in Mill Valley and his ashes will be strewn at sea.

ily dwellings, road construction, small industrial boilers, restaurants, and boilers with a capacity less than 10 million British thermal units per hour. To illustrate what this last means, it was noted out that the Federal Building in San Francisco — one of the largest structures in the Bay Area — would just fall within the regulation since its rated capacity is 10 million btu.

Objections from industry and local government were brushed aside in light of the EPA's demand for immediate action. The district's top administrator, D. J. Callaghan, said "this is the first step in a very far-reaching land use program."

Just how far it went was evident in the outpouring of protests from cities and counties in the district, all arguing the regulation interjected the district into local planning powers.

Hints of court challenges came at a previous hearing on the regulation, and Callaghan said he will have to enforce it cautiously so the district can defend itself against such a challenge.

The provision for banning new construction is supposed to apply as well to areas which themselves have relatively clean air, but whose pollution blows into smog-saturated areas. Callaghan, however, said "right now, we are not in a position to make that determination."

Data barely exists, he said, to determine the effect of major projects within a specific vicinity.

Solano County Supervisor Robert Scofield cast the only "no" vote, explaining he was "in favor of clean air, but I'm not in favor of upsetting the economy."

Marin County Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. was one of five directors absent for the vote, although he attended most of the five-hour hearing. Sonoma County Supervisor Robert Theiller also was absent, as was Santa Rosa City Councilman Gerald M. Poznanovich.

Pair Held In Probe Of Assault

Keith Norval Caslake, 28, of 300 Olema Road, Fairfax, and Joseph Ray DeCosta, 22, of 17 Francis Street, San Rafael, were booked last night on charges of suspicion of conspiracy and assault with intent to commit rape.

Bail was set at $15,000 for both men pending an appearance today in Marin Municipal Court.

According to the Fairfax Police Department, the two men are accused of threatening and making advances on Caslake's estranged common law wife at 3 a.m. Monday in her home at 300 Olema Road.

Democrats In R.I. Hit At McGovern

CRANSTON, R.I. (UPI)—The state Democratic party leadership, which backed Sen. Edmund S. Muskie in Tuesday's presidential primary, indicated Thursday it might challenge the makeup of the slate of delegates pledged to Sen. George S. McGovern, the primary winner.

Lawrence P. McGarry, state Democratic chairman, criticized McGovern for allowing his name to appear on the primary ballot after pledging not to be on it and that he would support an uncommitted slate.

without comment to allow Hahn to move about one million cubic yards of fill onto the site beginning in about 30 days and authorized condemnation of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad spur across the bay front for a frontage road.

The only clinker in the otherwise smoothly running session was thrown in by planning commissioner David I. Freed, who refused to agree that condemning the spur conforms to the general plan. He said the general plan was too out of date for him to make a finding, but three other commissioners present outvoted him in a special session.

The council also authorized Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels to begin negotiations to hire Urban Projects Inc. of Los Angeles, a consultant on redevelopment projects.

The council previously had set itself up as a redevelopment agency to make off-site improvements for the shopping center, much as Larkspur did in an attempt to lure Hahn's development to that city.

William M. Bryant, partner in the Urban Projects consulting firm, told the council that the value of the shopping center acreage would be frozen at its present level of $5 million until after the revenues from $20 million in improvements have been used to pay off bonds floated by the city council, acting as redevelopment agency.

After that time, the taxes on the added real estate value would be distributed normally.

The town must do $1.3 million in work, including a six-lane extension of San Clemente Drive, for the project, but could probably float up to $6 million in bonds for other uses like parks and flood control, Bartels said.

All would cost the taxpayers of the town nothing because the shopping center would be paying for the bonds, Hahn and Bryant said.

But the town wouldn't have to wait much beyond the opening of the center in late 1974 to reap the profits, Hahn said. The Southern California builder predicted the town would receive more than $600,000 in sales tax revenue in the first year on more than $60 million in sales plus another $74,000 in inventory and property taxes.

"If it increases our taxes, I'll be the first one to leave town," Norville said.

Hahn said he will begin moving dirt onto the site in about 30 days and will stack it to a depth of about 10 feet over the site of the buildings in order to compress bay mud underneath. The process, called surcharging, will take about 18 months, Hahn said.

Most of the dirt then will be leveled out for construction to begin late next year on more than 900,000 square feet of shop space and 5,000 parking spaces, Hahn said.

Macy's will occupy the middle of the center facing Highway 101 and will be flanked by an enclosed mall of stores leading to the other two major stores roughly the same size as Macy's.

"It is not going to be large and monolithic like a general motors plant," Hahn promised.

Instead it will be a low structure with many of the pleasing aspects of places like Ghirardelli Square in San Francisco, he said. Small shops will be boutiques and fashionable men's stores, he said, not variety stores like Woolworth's.

Signs, with the exception of those on the major stores, will be inside the air conditioned mall and not visible from the highway, Hahn said.

"Your experience should be like going down a fine street with fine stores," he said.

Hahn said the project also will require major improvements of the two nearby highway interchanges, but the state Division of Highways has agreed to the work.

Couple Rowing Off To Japan

Ron Shouse, 35, a painter from Lake Tahoe, Calif., and his wife, Bea, 24, said they expected to reach the Orient in four months.

Committee Rejects Same-Ticket Bill

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A Senate committee has rejected legislation requiring candidates for governor and lieutenant governor to run as a team on the same ticket.

The proposed constitutional amendment by Sen. Donald Grunsky, R-Watsonville, was defeated Thursday on a 3-2 vote, with five votes needed for approval.

Connally Rules Out Campaigning For President

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Outgoing Treasury Secretary John B. Connally says he has no plans to drum up political support for President Nixon after leaving the cabinet next month.

Connally told a small group of reporters during a luncheon Thursday he has agreed to take on some special assignments for Nixon requiring "international travel."

But he added, "I certainly am not going to be out rounding up votes for the President."

Mrs. Barndard, meanwhile, caught in the cross-fire of complaint, said she didn't realize she had done anything wrong. "If I did anything wrong," she told the I-J, "it's just because I'm an eager beaver. I'm not a grabber of power like Mayor (Richard) Daley of Chicago. My only thought was to get the negotiations going."

The library employees' grievances were originally brought to the council's attention through letters mailed to each councilman at his home, hence never became public knowledge.

Following that, Mayor Barnard requested names for the committee, then set a closed session for council consideration of the grievances. (The public, meanwhile, was told the closed session was a meeting to discuss salary negotiations, not grievances.)

Subsequently, Mrs. Barnard, single-handedly appointed the grievance committee.

The employees had asked the city to make up lost salary increases that were delayed by the wage and price freeze.

According to Kenneth L. Mackey, one of those appointed by Mrs. Barnard to the committee (along with Arnold M. Greenberg and George Minardi) the board has already reached a decision on the dispute and will present its recommendation to the city manager and employees' union in the near future.

RECALL

leading by two votes in a recount of April ballots.)

Weingarth, president of the Marin Estates Homeowners Association, said the group will file recall petitions only "as a last resort since it can amount to civil war."

He also disputed a claim by Mayor Norville that he had called the mayor in the "middle of the night" informing him of the recall move.

Weingarth said he phoned the mayor at 9:20 p.m. last Tuesday and invited him to a meeting to discuss new arguments against the housing project. "When the mayor refused to attend, I told him there was growing sentiment for a recall, but I didn't threaten him," he said.

Weingarth, who has been the main spokesman for a group opposing the Meadowsweet Station project, is listed along with Marilyn L. Hallin of Corte Madera in a suit filed yesterday to stop the project.

San Rafael attorney Albert Bianchi, counsel for the town of Corte Madera, said the town was served with the suit at about 3 p.m.

Bianchi said a hearing in Marin Superior Court has been set for 9 a.m. Tuesday.

Specifically he said, the suit asks reversal of planning commission approval of a tentative subdivision map and conditional use permit and the town council's approval last week of a grading permit.

The suit also seeks a "cease and desist order" to stop the grading which began this week on the development site located south of the Koch luggage plant, east of Highway 101.

Attorneys filing the suit were former deputy county counsel Joseph A Forest and Paul D. Kayfetz of Bolinas. Both are associated with the Environmental Law Fund Inc. of Novato.

Summit Set

NEW DELHI (UPI)—A summit meeting between Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and Pakistani President Zulfikar Al Bhutto, aimed at resolving differences arising from the Indo-Pakistan War, will be held in New Delhi starting June 28, officials sources said today.

OBITUARIES

James E. Whitney, 84, Dies

Private funeral has been held for James Edward Whitney, former national executive officer of the Episcopal Church.

He was a twelfth generation American and the last male of his line in direct descent from John Whitney who settled in Watertown, Mass., in 1634.

Son of the late Albert Llewellyn and Alice Collins Whitney, he was a native of Kansas. He graduated from Scandia (Kans.) High School and attended the University of Kansas and the University of Nebraska. He was a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, a life member of the Shrine, and was an admiral in the Nebraska Navy, an honorary title bestowed by the governor for exceptional services.

He was married in 1916 to Mary Amelia Challis, who survives him.

He served as cashier of the Lincoln (Neb.) State Bank; in the state department of trade and commerce in charge of a group of closed banks; and as cashier of the Grand Island (Neb.) National Bank. In 1930, he became executive secretary of the Missionary District of Western Nebraska.

During this period he visited the Civilian Conservation Corps which were in their infancy and instituted many activities which became permanent features. As a lay reader in the Episcopal Church he often served as acting chaplain in the camps.

WAR

they were brought in from West Germany.

UPI Correspondent Matt Franjola, who reported the first use of the missiles in fighting north of Kontum in April, said the operator aboard a helicopter guides the missile by keeping the target centered in a telescopic sight. The missile trails two wires behind it like a remote-controlled toy airplane and the operator sends electronic impulses over the wires to guide the missile.

New electronic and other scientific developments also were being used in the heavy air raids over North Vietnam where bombs are guided by laser beams projected by the pilots of American planes and in the U.S. 7th Fleet where the cruiser USS Chicago shot down a MIG fighter on April 19 with a 31-foot Talos missile.

The U.S. Command, reporting a third consecutive day of heavy raids against the Haiphong area, said U.S. Navy pilots from the carrier Midway using laser-beam bombs destroyed two bridges just northeast of Haiphong and heavily attacked a power plant near Vinh, 137 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ).

The power plant was the fifth hit since President Nixon lifted the ban on strikes against industrial targets. Pilots said damage to the Ben Thuy thermal power plant at Vinh could not be determined "because of intense smoke obscuring the target area after the strike."

The U.S. command said 290 American planes took part in Thursday's strikes in the North. It said a U.S. Navy A4 was shot down near Vinh and the pilot was listed as missing. There also were reports of heavy B52 strikes around the Kontum area and in the coastal region around Dat To, 42 miles southeast of Saigon, where B52s rarely are used.
